DYNAMITE IN STRIKE PERIL

ONE OF FIVE 50-POUND BOXES OF EXPLOSIVE.

Two hundred and fifty pounds of dynamite were left in the East Boston barn of Tutein & Co. by one of their strike-breaking teamsters. Police are investigating.

TO HUNDREDS

Police Probing Alleged Negligence and Violation of City Ordinance—Arrest if Facts Warrant Says Captain in Charge.

Searching investigation is being made to-day by the police of the East Boston station, under the direction of Captain Thomas Evans, of the charge that 250 pounds of dynamite were illegally brought to the stable of E. G. Tutein & Co., on Orleans street last night and allowed to remain there until taken away under police and fire department escort.

"I have had men working on this matter since daylight," said Captain Evans. "I have learned some facts. If I find that there has been violation of the law I will immediately take steps to arrest and prosecute all who had any part in the affair. A report from the officers who are interviewing those concerned will reach me very soon."

HUNDREDS OF LIVES IMPERILED.

East Boston was aroused by the knowledge that enough of the explosive to have wiped Noddle Island off the map was brought there by some mysterious route and for a time remained apparently unguarded in a district surrounded by tenement houses containing hundreds of people.

The attention of District Attorney John B. Moran is to be called to the charges.

E. G. Tutein & Co. are employing non-union men to take the place of their former employes, members of Teamsters' Union No. 242, who struck just after the big teamsters' strike went into effect. It was because of the watch kept on the premises of the company by the strikers that the knowledge of the presence of the dynamite was given to the police and fire department.

Here are the facts so far as the police investigation has disclosed:

DRIVES THROUGH STREETS.

One of the teamsters received an order to go to the freight house on the Western division of the Boston & Maine Railroad and receive the five boxes containing the dynamite. He got his load and at a late hour in the afternoon drove through the crowded streets to the Custom House street office of Tutein & Co.

When he arrived there he found the stable closed. He drove away and by some route which has not yet been definitely learned he arrived at Orleans street in East Boston. There are two ways of getting there, either by the ferries or by way of Charlestown and Chelsea.

What was done then is not exactly known. It was sometime later that a powerful member of the Teamsters' Union reported to Lieutenant Leahy at Engine 9 that the dynamite was at the stable.

Lieutenant Leahy communicated with Chief Mullen at the Mason street headquarters and received orders to notify the police. This he did. Police and firemen went to the stable and found the dynamite.

Mr. Tutein was located at his home in Revere and was asked to come to the stable. He did so. Then under the direction of police and firemen the explosive was loaded on the team and delivered away.

REMOVED TO POWDER BOATS.

The police are sure this time that the route was by way of Chelsea and Charlestown to Commercial wharf. There the dynamite launch took the stuff to the powder boat down the harbor.

Fire Commissioner Hen W. Wells admits that the dynamite was in East Boston contrary to law and that it was ordered removed by the police and fire departments. In a statement the head of the fire department says:

"Although I have not had time to investigate, I assume that the department was notified of the arrival of the consignment of the stuff last night and that the firemen saw to it that it was properly loaded. That ended our interest in the matter and we knew nothing more of it until some men reported to members of an East Boston company that there was a quantity of it stored in the Tutein stables in violation of the law. We notified the police, and when it was loaded again had men on hand to oversee the work and assist in properly safeguarding the public."

RECALLS MELROSE TRAGEDY.

At the time of the explosion in Melrose when a box of dynamite fell from a team and was struck by an electric car, causing the deaths of a number of people, demand was made for a general State law to cover all transportation of explosives. It was found then that while Boston had ordinances which covered its storage and carrying, it provided small penalty for violation. The railroad commissioners made rulings which covered the transportation in public conveyances.

The matter was put up to the State police for enforcement. Deputy Chief Neal undertook the framing of a code or rules which would apply to all parts of the State.

Chief Whitney, in office only forty-eight hours, told a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter to-day that he had received no official notice of any violation of the law and would not take action unless it was brought officially to his attention. He knew that Deputy Neal had been at work on some general code of regulations, but was not aware what had been done. Deputy Neal was not at his office in Boston to-day.

PROVISION OF ORDINANCE.

It is provided in the city ordinances that the fire department shall be notified when explosives are to be transported through the city and that the loading shall be done under the direction of a fireman or officer detailed for that purpose by Chief Mullen.

It is declared by Fire Commissioner Wells that the responsibility of the department ends when it is found that the explosive has been properly loaded.

SCHOOL CEILING FALLS ON CHILDREN; 2 HURT

CRASH CAUSES PANIC AND WILD RUSH FOR DOORS BY LITTLE ONES.

Special to the Boston American.

NORTH ATTLEBORO, April 23.—Two children were injured and nearly fifty others were panic-stricken when the ceiling in the seventh grade of the J. H. Pierce School fell with a terrific crash just after the session opened to-day. Miss Clara Hill, the teacher, prevented the children from being hurt in the rush for the doors by her coolness.

The injured were George Pickering, aged eleven years, and Clara Brevette, aged ten years. The boy was severely cut on his left cheek and was knocked unconscious. The girl was knocked from her seat and her hip injured.

For a few moments the schoolroom was filled with the suffocating dust of plaster. Choking and with their eyes filled the little ones dashed for the door.

The ceiling came down ten minutes after school had opened and while the children were singing their morning hymn. There was no warning.

As quickly as possible word was sent for help, and Drs. E. S. Ward and James A. Bryer were called. They attended the injured ones.

This is the third ceiling which has fallen in the school since it was built five years ago. Immediately after the accident the School Committee met and decided to have all the ceilings removed and steel ones put in their places. In the meantime it is expected that a number of children will be kept from school, their parents not being willing to submit them to such danger.

There are about 300 pupils in the school.

MACHINE FIGHTS TO MAKE COLT SENATOR

SUPREME EFFORT MADE TO-DAY TO END THE RHODE ISLAND DEADLOCK.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 23.—The Legislature may decide to-day who will succeed George Peabody Wetmore as United States Senator. Under the direction of General Charles R. Brayton, the Republican boss of Rhode Island, the machine has lined up its followers in the legislative chamber to-day, determined if possible to make Colonel Samuel Pomeroy Colt, Jr., of Bristol, the new Senator.

It looked at noon as if there would be a hard fight, but General Brayton said shortly after the session opened that he was confident that his man would win.

Vote to Indorse Colt.

The Republican State Executive Committee yesterday voted to urge the Legislature to-day to decide upon Colonel Colt, and its members believe that its suggestion will clear the deadlock over the vacant Senatorship which has been on since the Legislature began its session thirteen weeks ago.

The Democratic candidate, Colonel H. I. Goddard has led in the balloting every day, receiving teh full Democratic strength of forty-one votes.

If the vacancy is not filled to-day, the new senator will have to be chosen by the next Legislature.

The Republican leaders do not wish to have the question submitted to the people, because they fear the possible re-election of Mr. Wetmore, or worse than that, from their standpoint, the election of Colonel Goddard.

When the session began to-day there was a rumor about that the Colt and Wetmore forces had been harmonized.

Minority Oppose Indorsement.

The minority in the State Executive Committee which yesterday opposed the recommendation that Colonel Colt be chosen by the Legislature has sent a minority report to the Legislature, in which they say that the action of the committee in deciding in favor of Colonel Colt was "improper an absolutely unjustifiable."

The minority report is signed by William G. Landers, Edward A. Brown, Jesse W. B. Watson and Robert F. Rodman, all of whom are said to favor Mr. Wetmore.

Crazed by the Prospect of Divorce To-day,

KILLED WIFE, SHOT SELF

Roxbury Painter Commits Double Crime After All-Night Quarrel.

Driven to insane frenzy by the thought that his wife, Mary, was to be granted a divorce to-day, and because she had him arrested for threats against her life, John U. Sperry shot and killed her at 4 o'clock this morning, after an all-night quarrel in their home at No. 102 Heath street, Roxbury, and then fatally shot himself in the head in the next room. The slayer is still alive, though unconscious, at the City Hospital, but has no chance for recovery.

The Sperrys have been married about two years, but have never lived happily. It is said that he drank to excess. When his wife sued for divorce, recently, he threatened violence to himself if she were successful.

Ascribes Tragedy to Drink.

"Drink was responsible for the murder," declared Mrs. J. Barrett, who lives at No. 104 Heath street, to an AMERICAN reporter to-day.

Fred Morse, who lives above the Sperry apartments, said that he heard Sperry shouting and abusing his wife all night before the double tragedy occurred. Three years ago, he added, Mrs. Sperry threatened to have her husband arrested for his cruel treatment of her.

The slain woman's name before her marriage was Mary Ostermeyer, and she is said to have had a brother somewhere in the city for whom the police are looking.

Mrs. Jaeger, who runs the Hotel Jaeger at Roxbury Crossing, where Sperry is said to have spent the evening before the murder, is his sister. She is now watching at his bedside in the City Hospital.

Mrs. Sperry had sworn out a warrant for her husband's arrest because of his threats against her, and only yesterday Special Officer Angell had served Sperry with the papers. He had agreed to surrender in the Roxbury District Court this morning.

Heard Her Cry for Help.

Early to-day the family of Harry Morse, who live above, were roused by a pistol shot and Mrs. Sperry's cry of "Mr. Morse! Mr. Morse!" Mr. Morse and his son Fred rushed below, but before they arrived a second shot rang through the house.

They found Mrs. Sperry already dead on the bed in her sleeping room, with Sperry unconscious and breathing convulsively on a couch in the sitting room adjoining. He had shot himself in the left eye.

Planned Carefully for His End.

After killing his wife, Sperry lay on the couch, placed a pail at his side to catch the blood, shot himself with excellent aim. The gun, a 32-calibre revolver lay near with two cartridges exploded.

Seeing that Sperry was still alive, Mr. Morse hurried to the street and told a policeman of the tragedy. He notified Sergeant Byrnes of the Roxbury Crossing police station, near the house, who took charge of the case. Dr. Nolan was called, and the wounded man was removed to the City Hospital. His wife's body was taken to the City Hospital Morgue and the medical examiner notified.

Sperry, a painter, has run a shop at No. 1,432 Tremont street. He has been prominent in Roxbury German circles, and a member of the Harugari. His health has long been poor, and not long ago he was sent to an asylum for mental treatment, being discharged later as cured. He is fifty-three years old, and his wife was fifty. The couple had no children.

Demanded Money from Wife.

Sperry is said to have neglected his business and demanded money frequently from Mrs. Sperry, who had an income from houses which she owned. Violent quarrels arose because of Mrs. Sperry's refusal to keep her husband in cash, the neighbors say, and they declare that Sperry was enraged because he felt that his wife's divorce would cut off his support. Those living in the same house and nearby heard the two quarreling all night.

Woman Sought Divorce Because of Sperry's Habits, and Was About to Get It.

4 MEN TRAMPLED DEAD AS 250 HORSES BURN

3 OTHER MEN MISSING, 10 HURT, 300 FAMILIES EVICTED BY NEW YORK FIRE.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Desperately of the frightened animals was such that working and flames and a struggling mass of 370 maddened horses, four men have their lives and three more are believed lost in a conflagration which swept the mammoth stables of the Despatch Sales Stables, Nos. 368 to 374 Christopher street, on the East Side early to-day, when 250 horses were burned, 300 families were driven from their homes, ten firemen were badly hurt and a property loss of 200,000 resulted.

Wildly the horses, on the upper floors, struggled, broke from their halters and stampeded. The stablemen who were trying to release and rescue them were trampled under the animals' hoofs.

Screamed Like Humans.

Like the screams of humans the cries of the burning horses rose above the deafening throb of the fire engines summoned by six alarms.

Some of the animals escaped to street, and in their agony dashed into crowd, slightly injuring several.

The bodies of the four men who death in vain efforts at rescue were from the ruins when the fire was

Only one of the dead men has identified. He was Carmina Tarso, thirty-five years old.

Drivers' Mourn Loss.

The bodies of the four men were taken to the morgue. Two of them areas badly burned that identification is impossible unless it is done by the process of elimination.

When the truckmen and drivers went to the burned stable for their horses they stood about in groups. Many of them had lost faithful friends in the horses that had been burned, and they were a grieved set of men.

The Health Board has been ordered to remove the dead horses as rapidly as possible.

STEAMER FORTRESS UNDER BAN

Board of Health Says Ship Must Be Cleaned Before Use.

ORDERED FROM WHARF

Former Police Captain Bradley, in charge of the strike-breakers now at work on the Boston teamsters' strike, said today: "I will break this strike.

"I did not serve twenty-three years among scenes of violence in New York for nothing."

With his new floating barracks in the harbor on which to quarter his men, in the shape of the former Spanish War transport Zealandia, strike-breaker Captain Bradley, who has been making such ineffectual efforts to interfere with the strike of the teamsters in Boston, made this significant statement to-day.

Sugar Trust Fighting Union.

A repetition of the trouble that the teamsters have had with their men at "Fort Bradley" already looms up. The Sugar Trust, which is said to be backing the teamsters in their fight against the drivers, brought the ship to the dock of the Boston Wharf Company under a misrepresentation. It was declared to-day by the wharf people.

The Zealandia will have to find a new anchorage at once. The wharf company does not propose, one of its officers said to-day, to run the risk of danger to property there through the proximity of the new refuge of the men who have been hired to break the strike.

While it is declared that the ship will soon be filled with strike-breakers, to-day its force had dwindled to such an extent that nothing like an effectual teaming force was at work in Boston. It was noticeable, too, that in many instances where the teams were being driven by strike-breakers the drivers were boys of seventeen and eighteen years.

ORDERED STRANGE CRAFT AWAY

Superintendent of the Boston Wharf Company L. C. Melcher had this to say today about the Zealandia:

"Representatives of the American Sugar Refinery Company called at my office a few days ago and said they wanted to bring an empty steamer to our wharf in South Boston for a few days. I thought that they wanted to load her with sugar for some port, otherwise I would have never permitted them to dock.

"I want them to move the boat away from my dock not later than to-morrow night. I don't care where they put her, but she shall not stay where she is at the present time. I am through with all entanglements, and I would do nothing to injure the union teamsters in any way.

MAY RAISE INSURANCE RATES.

"Why, a representative of one of the insurance companies called at my office and told me that unless the steamer was moved he would have to increase my insurance rates $40,000, so I am determined to get rid of the steamer as soon as possible."

Archibald Mahon of the firm of Waddell breakers, had a long conference with the occupants of Fort Bradley to-day. He promised all who would stick until the end of the strike $10 each and a suit of clothes, and assured the strike-breakers that he is confident that the strikers will be beaten.

HEALTH BOARD ON ALERT.

"Our firm," said Mahon, "under ordinary conditions have always succeeded in breaking strikes in which we have participated, in thirty days, and we are going to break this one."

Commissioner Michael W. Norris of the health board said that if the Zealandia's accommodations are not all that are required by law the Board of Health will take some action to prevent her use by the strike-breakers.

Fifield, Richardson & Co. sent out nine teams and seventeen men this morning; Flanders & Co., nine teams and twenty men; Johnson & Co., eight teams and fifteen men; the Boston Forwarding and Transportation Company, seven teams and fifteen men, and R. Presby & Co., three teams and nine men.

Unions Not Worrying.

The teamsters on strike are still confident of victory, the coming of the Zealandia and the extraordinary efforts made by the Master Teamsters to break the strike is not worrying the union men. Agent Daniel J. Tobin is more satisfied than ever to-day with the situation.

Fewer wagons have been moved thus far this week than last week, by the "struck firms."

Eighteen more strike-breakers came over from New York yesterday. More than one half quit upon learning the conditions here. A group of thirteen sailormen also came from Bangor. Fourteen of the number reported at the union office instead of to the struck firms.

The officials of the longshoremen's, freight handlers' and other transportation organizations conferred with the officers of the teamsters' union. The team drivers' officers now have the authority to order a general strike if they consider it necessary. There seems no reason at present for extending the strike, the union officers say.

Freight Piles Up.

On the N. Y., N. H. & H. Railroad it was stated that 150 cars of Boston inward freight were held up at different points along the road. The Boston & Albany road had seventy-five cars. The B. & M. is not having so much difficulty, as all but one of its forwarding firms has signed the scale.

The harbor police say they have not as yet been asked to take any actions regarding the Zealandia. At the strike-breaking headquarters it was stated that the cots and furnishings there would be transferred to the Zealandia to-day, and the ship would be occupied to-night.

Some Results of Employers' Attitude Toward Drivers

Dynamite carried through the streets illegally and left in large quantities unguarded.

Strike-breaking drivers seventeen and eighteen years of age employed to take the places of the man who went out.

Strike-breakers housed on a floating barracks in the harbor that they may be secure as possible.

Thousands of tons of freight that should have reached Boston held up outside because it cannot be handled here.

Freight tied up on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railway, 150 cars.

Freight tied up on the Boston & Albany Railway, 75 cars.

Great congestion of freight on the Boston & Maine Railway.

A general strike threatened that would paralyze business in this and other cities and towns of New England.

YOUNG WIFE, REFUSED KISS, KILLS SELF

Scolded by Woman She Had Worked for, Drinks Carbolic When Unforgiven.

Mrs. Mabel Chapin, aged thirty-three, died at the City Hospital at 6:30 a. m. to-day, as the result of swallowing a wineglassful of carbolic acid last night, because the woman for whom she worked did not kiss her good-night.

Mrs. Chapin was housekeeper for Mrs. Bush at No. 4 Lawrence street. Though her work had been satisfactory, she received a scolding yesterday for some trivial neglect, and worried over this all the afternoon and evening.

As she was about to retire she went into Mrs. Bush's room and knelt down by her bed, asking forgiveness and a good-night kiss. Mrs. Bush was half asleep and did not understand what she asked, going to sleep again.

The young woman, in despair, hurried to her own room and swallowed the deadly acid. She was hurried to the City Hospital as soon as her condition was discovered.

Mrs. Chapin's husband is serving a four-year sentence for straw bail, and since his incarceration she had lived with Mrs. Bush.

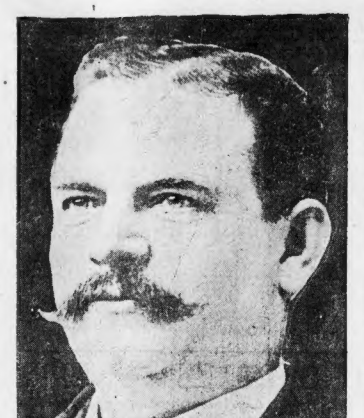

She left two letters to friends and a telegram to her brother in Weymouth asking him to hurry to No. 4 Lawrence street the first thing this morning.

NICARAGUA FALLS DRY BY ICE MASSES

NICARAGUA FALLS, N. Y., April 23.—American falls went dry yesterday in sections, owing to immense ice fields forced down from Lake Erie by a tremendous gale. Where the full sweep of water usually plunges over, there are four separate falls, presenting a very peculiar sight.

KILLED WIFE, SHOT SELF FATALLY

John U. Sperry, a Roxbury painter, committed double crime early this morning after quarrelling through night with wife who expected to obtain a divorce from him to-day.

ASKS DIVORCE, SAYS WIFE ALREADY WED

TAUNTON, April 23.—Walter B. Moxon of Taunton has petitioned the Superior Court for the annulment of his marriage to Sybil B. Lawrence, on the ground that, he alleges, at the time of the ceremony, August 28, 1906, she had a husband living, he the name of Harry Perham, who resided at or near Boston.

MARBLE TRUST TO GET ANOTHER PLANT

MONTPELIER, Vt., April 23.—The Vermont Marble Trust has petitioned Judge W. W. Miles for permission to lease the Columbian Marble Company's plant at Rutland, and to purchase the same at any time when necessary "in the interest of its business," for a sum not to exceed $280,000.

SLEUTHS PROBE DARING THEFT IN BOND PLOT

Finding of $20,000 Loot in Former Hub Man's Room Causes Sensation.

WIFE AIDS THE PRISONER

Following the discovery of $20,000 or more of the bonds taken by William O. Douglass, the defaulting employe of the Trust Company of America, concealed in the bed of Oliver M. Dennett, formerly of Boston, a broker with whom Douglass had dealings, at the exclusive New York Manhattan Club, detectives declared to-day that before their investigation is completed there will probably be some sensational disclosures showing that Douglass' game was one of the most remarkable deals ever developed in Wall street. One or more arrests in the matter were openly hinted at.

The search of Dennett's room by detectives will probably be followed by consequences unpleasant to the broker, as directors and members of the club resent the intrusion. That, however, will have no effect upon the police investigation. Dennett only submitted to the examination when threatened with arrest. Then the securities were discovered.

To Recover Securities.

Officers of the Trust Company asserted that all the securities taken by Douglass and placed or collateral with various financial institutions would be back in their hands. Some of the securities were surrendered patiently and arrangements for the return of others were completed today.

The greatest secrecy is maintained as to the exact face value of the bonds taken by Douglass, but from one source it was learned they exceed $100,000. All the officers deny, however, the amount will reach $250,000.

Wife Comes to His Aid.

Working secretly and without the least ostentation, Mrs. William O. Douglass, the beautiful young wife of the self-confessed bank thief, is putting forth her best efforts in the hope that she may save her husband from a long term of imprisonment, which will be his fate in the event of conviction. It has been learned that she is enlisting the services of persons with whom she and her husband have been on social terms, and that she hopes to prove her husband's innocence. She firmly believes that he is a victim of a gang of financial tricksters, and that everything will come out all right after the whole story has been told in court.

MAINE CENTRAL SHOP MEN DEMAND RAISE

WATERVILLE, Me., April 23.—The Maine Central employes in the shops here have presented a demand for an increase of 10 per cent. and Saturday half holidays during June, July and August and holidays on all days recognized as such in Maine, besides time and a half for holidays and overtime. The carpenters of the city have demanded an increase of twenty-five cents a day.

BRYAN GUEST OF GUILD AT BREAKFAST

Military Men and Spanish Veterans Entertain Nebraskan Prior to Lawrence Trip.

IN VERMONT TO-MORROW

William Jennings Bryan arrived in Boston at 9:05 a. m. to-day from Fall River.

He was met at the South Station by George Fred Williams, with whom he drove to the Algonquin Club. Mr. Bryan was accompanied from Fall River by Colonel A. C. Drinkwater of Braintree and Colonel Alexander H. Troup of New Haven, Ct.

At the Algonquin Club Mr. Bryan was the guest of Governor Guild at breakfast.

Guests of Spanish Vets.

At the breakfast were fellow comrades-in-arms. Both he and Governor Guild served in the 7th army corps in the Spanish war, Governor Guild as inspector general on the staff of General Fitzhugh Lee and Mr. Bryan as colonel of the 1st Nebraska regiment.

As the Governor's guests at the breakfast besides Mr. Bryan were the following officers of the 7th army corps residing in this vicinity: Brigadier General William A. Bancroft, who commanded the 2d brigade of the 2d division of the 7th army corps; General Bancroft's two aids, Captain Francis A. Parker and Captain Lester Leland; Lieutenant Colonel E. H. Eldredge, commander Naval and Military order of the Spanish-American War, Captain Edwin C. Barrett, commander of the United Spanish War Veterans, and his adjutant; the general officers of the Governor's staff, as follows: Brigadier General James F. Parker, Adjutant General; Brigadier General William H. Devine, Brigadier General William H. Brigham, Brigadier General Frederick B. Carpenter, Brigadier General William B. Emery, Brigadier General Hugh Bancroft; Hon. George Fred Williams, Mr. Bryan's host in Boston.

Mr. Bryan later left for the Parker House to attend a meeting of the Harvard Symposium. After this he was to go to Lawrence. Mayor John P. Kane of Lawrence came to Boston to meet his guest. Arrangements had been made for a reception to Mr. Bryan to be held in the council chamber in Lawrence. The guest is then to deliver his lecture, "The Average Man," at the City Hall.

To-night Mr. Bryan lectures in Lowell. To-morrow he begins his tour of Vermont, making his first speech in the State at White River Junction.

How to SAVE Money and MAKE Money

This is to be a sermon on ECONOMY, based upon a wise utterance and upon seven reasons.

This is the basis of our discourse: "The sluggard is wiser, in his own conceit, than seven men that can render a reason."

Every human being is interested in economy, for it means the earning of leisure and independence in the future, through self-denial and system now. The establishment of Houghton & Dutton Co., the great cash house of New England, is based absolutely upon lines of intelligent, profitable ECONOMY in the interests of the public.

This half page, with the illustration, is planned, of course, to attract your attention. That which it announces is planned for your benefit. We show you seven wise men reasoning with one foolish sluggard. Take it for granted that the sluggard does not appreciate the importance of economy, nor understand the Houghton & Dutton Co. method.

The seven wise men will now speak.

THE SLUGGARD. THE SEVEN WISE MEN.

1st Wise Man: Your money, earned by your work and your intelligence, should bring you in the greatest possible returns. This it can do in two ways: First, by earning interest before it is spent; second, by purchasing to the utmost in quality and quantity when it IS spent.

Houghton & Dutton Co. GIVE YOU INTEREST ON YOUR MONEY, and enable you to buy goods of highest quality and cheaper in price than anywhere else.

2d Wise Man: Of a thousand successful men, more than nine hundred and ninety attribute their success to FORMING HABITS OF ECONOMY. Ben Franklin preached on this for years, and every great millionaire to-day preaches the same, all telling you that one hard thing is to save the FIRST thousand, and that the second hard thing is to HOLD ON TO THE OTHER THOUSANDS. Houghton & Dutton Co. have a plan which enables you to save your FIRST thousand or to keep and add to your OTHER thousands.

3rd Wise Man: Houghton & Dutton Co. have a special Depositors' Account Department for customers. You can deposit there as much or as little of your income as you choose, whether it be salary, wages or dividend. When you want your money you can take it out—although NO BANKING BUSINESS IS DONE, and no temptation offered for promiscuous spending. Every dollar earns four per cent., instead of the usual three or three and a half, as long as it is in their hands.

4th Wise Man: Houghton & Dutton Co. do a strictly CASH business. Thus, when you buy of Houghton & Dutton Co. you SAVE what other stores lose on bad debts, slow pay and an extravagant bookkeeping department. (NO ARGUMENT IS REQUIRED TO PROVE THAT THE customer MUST PAY A STORE'S EXPENSES, INCLUDING ITS BAD DEBTS.)

5th Wise Man: But if you have a deposit account with Houghton & Dutton Co., you charge what you buy to your account. Thus, at this store, you shop with the CONVENIENCE and speed of a credit account, and with the ECONOMY of a cash business—BESIDES WHICH EACH DOLLAR EARNS INTEREST WHILE WAITING TO BE SPENT.

6th Wise Man: Economy IS a habit, nothing but a habit, like punctuality, accuracy, etc. Form the HABIT of economy now and begin a deposit account with Houghton & Dutton Co., where you can exercise the DOUBLE economy of saving with good interest added and of spending under conditions of the greatest possible economy.

7th Wise Man: Open an account with Houghton & Dutton Co. for yourself, or your wife. Add to it as often, or as seldom, as much or as little as you please. Use it to make your purchases on the economical CASH Basis when you have purchases to make. Let it earn interest at four per cent. every hour you leave it with them. Get your balances regularly, showing what you have saved and what interest it has earned. Begin the important habit of spending always less than you make, and see the result week by week and year by year in a steady accumulation.

Thus, undoubtedly, would wise men speak to the "sluggard" too deep in his own conceit to know the value of true economy. For sluggishness never shows more plainly than in the neglect of economy.

You understand the simple proposition: Put your money on deposit in our credit department, where it begins immediately to draw four per cent. interest, which is compounded every three months. Make your purchases at the cheapest CASH rate, with all the comfort and speed of shopping on credit. Begin an accumulation of money, and above all THE HABIT OF ACCUMULATING, that alone leads to wealth and independence in after life.

Your money earns interest. It can be withdrawn at any time or left to earn interest. It is on hand for you when you need to spend it, and RIGHT WHERE YOU CAN SPEND IT MOST ADVANTAGEOUSLY—no going to the bank and waiting in line to get a little out. Each penny and dollar earns its interest until spent. You spend it—when you do spend it—at a cash store on a cash basis, and instead of paying for the bad debts of others, as you must do with credit concerns, you get the lowest possible prices for the best possible goods—AND YOUR MONEY EARNS INTEREST BESIDES.

If this statement interests you; if the sayings of the seven wise men above have convinced you; if you want to begin with us an account that means DOUBLE economy—call at our store, the great cash house and the original department store of New England. Ask for the manager of the credit department and get further details.

LOVE SPURNED, MISTAKE, SAYS MRS. REYNOLDS

Bowler, in Message Through Sheriff, Declares He Wants Only His Wife.

HAS NOT YET RAISED BAIL

Her love and visits spurned by the man for whom she has sacrificed her social position, her good name and her money, "It isn't Mr. Bowler's fault that he would not see me at the jail," said Mrs. Edith A. Stevens Reynolds last night. "It isn't his fault. My darling boy still loves me as much as I do him. It is all the fault of circumstances."

Resplendent in fine clothes and glistening with jewels, Mrs. Reynolds has been trying for two days to get an interview with Bowler, who is locked up in the Charles Street Jail on the charge of having ing forged the name of his brother to some notes.

The devoted young woman telephoned to Sheriff Seaver to see if Bowler would see her. She had tried to see him earlier and found that only one woman was allowed to visit him—his wife.

The sheriff went to the young man's cell and asked if he wanted to see Mrs. Reynolds.

"I want to see my wife. She is the only woman I want to see," he answered.

And this was the reply that the Sheriff gave back to Mrs. Reynolds over the telephone. But she persists that he did not mean to spurn her, and that he still loves her as much as ever.

Her Lawyer Coming.

William T. Schoen of No. 61 Park row, New York, who has been stopping at the Parker House since last week and representing himself as the attorney looking after Bowler's New York interests, is, according to Mrs. Reynolds, so angered by the notoriety she has attracted that he has threatened to throw up the case.

"Don't things look terrible in print," she said. "If I had thought it would sound as it did I would never, never have told how much I love my darling, dear boy. It has made Mr. Schoen awfully mad. He's going to throw up the case. But I don't care. I've telegraphed for my own lawyer to come over from New York and he'll fix up everything."

Neither has Mrs. Reynolds been able to secure the $30,000 bail necessary to free young Bowler from durance until his case comes up in court, and there is even a chance that the amount of the bail demanded may be increased. Her husband will not help her; in fact, he even denies that his wife is trying to do anything for Bowler and declares that she never made the statements she is reported to have made.

Repudiates Wife's Statements.

"Mrs. Reynolds and I came to Boston on private business in no way connected with George Pendleton Bowler," he declared last night. "I have not the slightest interest in freeing him from jail and, so far as I know, my wife has none. The statements attributed to her I absolutely repudiate as false and malicious."

The midnight conference between Mrs. Reynolds, who says that she still possesses the love of the man now languishing in jail, and Mrs. Bowler, which took place at Mrs. Bowler's home, No. 207 Hemenway street, Sunday night, does not appear to have resulted in a concert of effort on their part to free him. When Mrs. Reynold's learned yesterday that Bowler would be allowed to see but one person, and that he would see no one but his wife, she went to the home of Mrs. Bowler to endeavor to induce the wife of the prisoner to give her the opportunity to see Bowler in her stead, but only to be met by the maid with the statement:

"Mrs. Bowler has gone for the day, and will not be back until to-morrow. I don't know where she is, and she left no message for you."

Mrs. Bowler called on her husband at the jail yesterday, as she has done every day since he was arrested, and stayed as long as the rules permitted her. Seen later, she said:

"Everything will come out all right in the end, I am sure. After my husband left me he sent me $50 a week, but after a year he tried to reduce the amount. It is true that I still love him and I feel that he loves me. Some day he will come to his senses and lose his fascination for pretty faces and gaiety."

Despite the failure of her efforts yesterday to secure bail for Bowler and despite her rebuff at the jail, Mrs. Reynolds did not lose heart.

"I shall try again to-day," she said, as she ate her breakfast. "I shall never desert George. He is my dearest friend. I know he spent a lot of my money, but I lent it to him and he had a right to do what he wanted with it. I shall stick by him to the end."

"MY HUSBAND STILL LOVES MURIEL AND ME."

JURY REPORTS DISAGREEMENT OVER ROBERTS

HOULTON, Me., April 23.—At 10:55 the jury in the Dickinson trial returned to the court room and reported that they were unable to agree on a verdict. They saw no prospect of an agreement.

The judge thanked them and discharged them, and Jack Roberts, the prisoner, was taken back to jail. The jury stood seven for acquittal, five for conviction, the foreman announced.

Crowds who had hung about the court all night pressed into the court room when the jury came in after their all night session.

When Jack Roberts came to the dock on being told that the jury would report, he looked far from the husky man that he was on the 18th of October last. His face was pale and his expression was woe begone.

3 BADLY HURT AS MAMMOTH MOTORS CRASH

Three men were injured and two women and three other men narrowly escaped serious injury when two automobiles crashed together on Commonwealth avenue, near the Chestnut Hill Resevoir, shortly after midnight.

N. F. Rae, of No. 93 St. Botolph street; G. M. Hartly, of No. 90 St. Botolph street, and Walter H. Burbank, of No. 15 Vancouver street were injured.

The three men were in an auto numbered 18,111, and driven and owned by a Mr. Mleunch, of No. 108 Westbourne road, Brookline. J. T. Gilmore, of 93 St. Botolph street, was also a passenger in the same car.

They were coming toward Boston, and when near the top of the hill near the resevoir they collided with a smaller car numbered 13,077. In this car were B. B. Story, of No. 100 Francis street, Brookline; G. H. Smith, of No. 90 St. Botolph street; P. H. Burnett and two women whose names could not be learned.

WATCH BOAT OF SUSPECT IN MARVIN KIDNAPPING CASE

Armed With Warrant Charging Murder, Police Keep Guard Over Schooner Day and Night.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 23.—Three detectives are here watching one of the Delaware river fishing schooners to prevent any escape of the man now declared to be the kidnapper of little Horace Marvin, Jr., of Dover.

One of the detectives, James L. Hawkins, State detective of Delaware, has in his pocket a warrant charging the supposed kidnapper with murder, the warrant being made out in that form on the advice of Attorney-General Richards of Delaware, because the missing boy has not yet been definitely located, and the evidence at hand is such as seemingly makes it possible to demand the boy, dead or alive, if in the hands of the man against whom the warrant is issued.

Others Warrants To-day.

Other warrants are likely to be issued to-day and there is every reason to believe that the solution of the seven weeks' mystery regarding the kidnapping of the little boy is at hand. While three detectives are in Philadelphia watching the suspect, one is at Chester investigating the report that a child was put ashore there during the hour and a half made there there by the boat which brought the suspect to this city. In case the suspect here attempts to escape, the warrant will be served at once and extradition asked, but if it is the hope of the detectives that the suspect will leave for Delaware early in the day and in that case he will not be arrested until he is over the border of the State, so that provoking legal delays may be avoided.

The issuance of the warrant charging murder against the suspect was the result of the meeting yesterday at Dover of the grand jury for Kent county. The members of the grand jury, of which E. L. Clarke was chosen foreman, at once commenced an inquiry into the Marvin kidnapping case, and State Detective Frank H. Lore, of New Jersey, and State Detective James L. Hawkins, of Delaware, were asked to lay before the grand jury whatever evidence they might have in the case. As a result of the testimony of these men, the grand jury wished to indict three persons, but under the advice of Attorney General Richards, Mr. Hawkins swore out a warrant against one suspect, charging murder, and the other cases will be acted upon immediately after the first arrest.

Think Child Near.

Almost from the first it has been the opinion of most of the citizens of Dover, men who know the country surounding the Marvin farm, that the child was being concealed within ten miles of the scene of the kidnapping. It was through a clue pointing to the possible hiding place of the child, that Detective Lore of New Jersey first became interested in the case, and his assistance has been gladly accepted by the Delaware authorities.

Old Dr. Marvin had hoped to accompany the detectives to this city in their pursuit of the suspect, but he was unable to make the trip because of his ill health. The frequent disappointments and the long strain of the last seven weeks, during which his favorite child has been missing have completely unnerved him.

FIRE FRIGHTENED VT. PRISONERS

RUTLAND, Vt., April 23.—Fire early to-day in a workhouse at the House of Correction caused a small panic among the several hundred inmates of the jail and hospital. The flames broke through into the chapel and fifteen patients in the hospital had to be removed to the guard room. Sparks from a prisoner's pipe are supposed to have caused the blaze.

HIS ARM AND LEG BROKEN BY MACHINE

CLAREMONT, N. H., April 23.—Frank Julian, aged forty-five, had his right arm broken in two places and his right leg at the hip by being struck by a part of a waste dryer which broke at the Sullivan machine shop yesterday. His arm was amputated.

SAY HE HAS 17 WIVES; JAILED

By Boston American Leased Wire.

MARSHALL, Mich., April 23.—Dr. John Carver, alleged bigamist, who is said to have at least seventeen wives, was captured to-day at Fort Smith, Ark. The specific charge on which he was arrested was that of defrauding Mrs Lola Davis of Battle Creek out of $25,000.

Carver married her on October 16, 1906, at Battle Creek. He went with her to New York and they decided to buy a boarding house. He told the wife to go home and raise all the money she could on her property and forward him a draft and he would make arrangements to have her come on in two weeks after all details had been settled. He got the money, it is charged, and disappeared.

POLICE PROBE THE DEATH OF LAD BY AUTO

Killing of Bright Boston American Newsboy Plunges Family in Grief.

SYMPATHY OF NEIGHBORS

With grief that kind comforters are unable to assuage, Mrs. L. M. Rasmussen of Dorchester mourns unceasingly to-day for her twelve-year-old son Albert, the BOSTON AMERICAN newsboy who was struck by an automobile and killed in Mattapan square last night just as he was hustling with youthful energy to carry a newspaper to a waiting customer.

The father is nearly prostrated to-day, as well, but with his greater strength is able to bear his grief better than the mother. The dead lad's little brothers and sisters join their childish sorrow to the deeper suffering of their parents.

Saw Son Just Before Death.

Scant consolation is afforded the father in that he spoke with his son a moment before the boy was killed. The father was on his way to his home, No. 40 Hiawatha road, Dorchester. Mr. Rasmussen, thinking to give his boy the benefit of the family trade, regularly bought his evening AMERICAN from Albert. Last night Albert saw his father coming, ran toward him, handed him his paper neatly folded, called out "Hello, Papa," and then turned to attend to other customers. The father continued on his way, thinking pleasantly of the boy and of his ability to attend to business.

The police of Dorchester station are continuing to-day their investigation of the boy's death. Albert was killed by an auto operated by W. T. Costello, of No. 93 West street, Malden, according to the police.

Says Speed Not Too Great.

Costello said he was using due caution with regard to speed, but that the newsboy darted across the auto's course before the car could be stopped. Miss Ella Linsky of No. 30 Hiawatha road, who saw the affair, told Police Captain Hunt that Albert stepped into the street all unconscious of the oncoming car. Costello went to Dorchester station, but was allowed to go after he had told his story and given his name.

The boy's skull was fractured when he was hit by the car. Death was probably instantaneous. His body was taken into the police sub-station in Mattapan square for temporary care.

HARVARD BOYS ARE MERRY OVER PEACE MEETING ROW

"Scrap" Between Professors Over Approval of Stead's Pilgrimage Plan Treated as Joke.

Harvard collegians are chuckling with huge glee to-day over the distinguished "scrap" which developed at the peace meeting in Harvard Union last night, when Professor James, brother of Henry James, leading philosopher and psychologist, crossed swords of peace with Professor Hugo Munsterberg, the eminent German, chum of "William the Sudden," and leading expounder of things Teutonic at the university.

Editor William T. Stead of London, publisher and peace promoter, who was slated as the principal speaker, is considerably wiser to-day concerning the Harvard collegian and the ways they have at Old Harvard to drive dull care away.

Munsterberg Declines.

The meeting was further enhanced by the presence, for the first time in the history of Harvard Union gatherings, of women. Mrs. Stead, Mrs. James and Mrs. Munsterberg were there, Mr. Stead having insisted that women be allowed to attend. They were cheered by the 800 collegians.

Mr. Stead delivered a long argument for peace. He suggested the appointment of twelve leading Americans to a European peace pilgrimage, to join European pilgrims and tour the continent in the interests of peace. A student moved that a committee be named to confer with Mr. Stead about starting such a pilgrimage. This attempt to put the seal of Harvard approval on the pilgrimage brought Professor Munsterberg to his feet. He was presiding.

Corrected His English.

"I decline responsibility for any such act," he shouted, "I should have declined to preside if I had known of this."

A student yelled, "Would have declined, would have declined," correcting the Munsterberg English.

Earlier in the evening a motion had been made commending Mr. Stead, making two motions before the meeting.

Professor James asked: "To which motion do you object?"

"I refuse to answer," replied Munsterberg, "resigning the chair to Professor James. The students cheered vociferously. Professor James appointed a committee.

"Laziest Vagabonds"—Stead.

Later, when Mr. Stead asked for a discussion of the peace question, no one spoke till Professor James finally said:

"My experience in class rooms has been that the students will never discuss matters."

Stead jumped to his feet and said, with evident heat:

"You are the laziest bunch of vagabonds I ever addressed in my life."

"You're all right, Bill. Keep it up," howled the students, cheerfully.

"How do I know whether I've driven my points into your thick skulls if you won't argue with me," retorted Stead. Whereat the students cheered him again.

CHARGE LAWSON CONSPIRACY IN COPPER RANGE

Accused of Trying to Break Famous 3-Year Pool in $6,000,000 Suit.

Thomas W. Lawson was charged with conspiring to break the famous three-year pool in Copper Range, when the suit of Paine, Webber & Co. against A. C. Burrage, Lawson and fifteen other defendants was opened before Judge Loring in the Supreme Judicial Court to-day.

The suit is to recover 70,000 shares of Copper Range, which the Boston brokerage house alleges were converted in violation of an agreement, or their equivalent, $6,000,000.

In his address to the court, Attorney Charles A. Snow, for the plaintiff, said:

"No consent was ever made by William A. Paine, senior member of the brokerage firm, either in writing or oral, to sell this stock, and Albert C. Burrage is guilty of breach of contract, because he agreed not to put the shares on sale for three years.

"The man who devised this scheme whereby this stock was sold—the real conspirator and active brain behind the whole plot—was Thomas W. Lawson. Certain of the goods were found on Lawson.

"From the sale of the 70,000 shares Burrage received $2,100,000 as his profits. We ask that this be returned to the Paine firm, and we ask that all money received in excess of $35 a share be also returned."

CAPE BRUSH FIRES PUT OUT BY HARD WORK

Flames Caused Serious Trouble in Many Other Parts of New England.

Hundreds of men are fighting forest and brush fires to-day in many sections of New England. During the past forty-eight hours flames have destroyed thousands of dollars' worth of timber land in Middleboro, Carver, Plymouth and Wareham, in this State, and in other New England States the damage has been heavy.

Two families are homeless in Middleboro as a result of brush fires getting beyond control of the fire-fighters. Women aided the men in trying to save their homes.

Flames Under Control.

The fires near Middleboro were got under control early today, after damage of $10,000 had been inflicted. Near Wareham, also, the fires are now reported to be out, after causing a loss of $1,500.

At South Pond, Plymouth, the residents were making a desperate fight early to-day and the fire gave them a hard rub. The wind shifted at 8:30 a. m., however, and the fire was soon under control.

Two houses were destroyed and many acres of woodland burned over near the shore of Canoble Lake, N. H. A rubbish fire on the premises of a farmer named Reed started the trouble and the high winds sent the flames rapidly through the underbrush in the woods.

Reed's house was burned, as was also the farmhouse of John Eaguon, a neighbor. By a hard struggle in beating back the flames, a party of sixty men of the neighborhood succeeded in saving the district school. The damage is estimated at $10,000.

Famous House Burned.

At Carver, the famous Turner property was destroyed. Several barns, outbuildings and shanties were burned with their contents, and valuable cranberrie bogs were burned over. Women as well as men have taken a hand in relays and are braving the fire and smoke, bringing food and coffee to the fire-fighters, who to-day are nearly exhausted.

In New Hampshire, a smoky haze hangs over Nashua, due to the numerous brush and wood fires that in and about the city have kept the firemen and railroad men busy. Hundreds of acres of woodland have been burned over. Reports from northern New Hampshire show that fires are raging there, and that the woods are dry and ripe for bad fires. Farmers are praying for rain.

Bennett Place Gone.

The homes of Edgar C. Sturtevant and Fred Orcutt, near Eddyville, have been destroyed, with barns and all their contents. The famous old Grover Bennett place, more than 100 years old, and a landmark in Plymouth county, was totally destroyed.

Farmers in Nemasket, Eddyville, Plympton, Warrenton, Rock Village and Lakeville have suffered severely.

Assistant Superintendent Litchfield of the Plymouth division, N. Y., N. H. & H., directed the fire fighters over toward Bridgewater, which for a time seemed to be in peril. The Boston tracks were wet down thoroughly, and trains ran with great caution.

CLERKS ENJOY TERRY PLAY

The happy family of men and women, boys and girls who constitute the working force of the Dodge-Spear firm of Boston took what time they could find between serving customers to-day to chat about the delightful portrayal of "Nance Oldfield" by Ellen Terry and the horrors of following the sea as shown in the four-act play, "The Good Hope." Incidently the employes of this firm discussed the innovation of the house in treating them to this rare dramatic performance.

The Dodge-Spear cohorts filled a large portion of the main floor of the theatre, and it was a fine looking, well dressed and highly appreciative audience. It was remarked that this was the first time that any department store had sent all of its employes to a theatre of the standing of the Hollis, and outsiders, who learned of this business policy, felicitated the members of the firm on the generous way in which the idea was carried out.

SLAY CURLEY BILL TO STAB INDEPENDENTS

McEttrick Leads Fight Against Act to Prohibit Caucus Voters Signing Nomination Papers.

Senator Tom Curley's bill "To prohibit the signing of nomination papers by persons who have already participated in a Boston caucus," which it was held would put an end to independent voting in the twenty-five wards of Boston and solidify machine power, was slammed out of the House of Representatives and down the Beacon street front of the State House late yesterday by the overwhelming vote of 123 to 31.

The "Tammany Club" bill was fairly laughed out of court. It was openly charged on the floor of the House to have been directed solely at the head of Representative McEttrick, who has developed a penchant for overturning the Curley slate in Ward 17 and being elected independently in spite of the Curley machine.

Representative John J. Conboy of the Tammany Club had the unhappiest experience of the afternoon.

"I should like to inquire of the gentleman from Boston in the first division (McEttrick), through you, Mr. Speaker," he said, "who paid his election expenses in 1905?"

Conboy is serving his first term on the Hill. He had not been heard from before. The Speaker ruled his question out of order with a bang of the gavel that awoke the doortenders.

"I regret the ruling," said former Congressman McEttrick, "for I was quite ready to answer the insult."

Mr. McEttrick was about to resume his argument against the Curley bill when Conboy decided to try again.

"Is it not a fact, Mr. Speaker," he said, "that the gentleman participated in a Tammany Club parade only two years ago?"

"I might deign to answer that question, too, Mr. Speaker," said Representative McEttrick, "were it not for the fact that my questioner is merely a tool of the Tammany Club in this body and does not speak for himself."

Conboy wasn't heard from again during the debate.

Representatives Luce, Dean of Wakefield, Brigham of Marlboro, Buckley of Charlestown, McEttrick and Quinn all opposed the Curley bill as vicious legislation.

WINTHROP'S SIX FIRE-FIGHTERS FACE SHAKEUP

Police Chief Buffinton Joyous Over Prospect of Getting Out of Limelight for a While.

There's a shake-up coming in the fire department of the town of Winthrop, and while Chief "Bud" Floyd and his department of six fire fighters are wondering just what's going to happen, Ernest R. Buffinton, the new chief of police, is filled with the joy of living and the gladsomeness of springtime. Buffinton says the shake-up will divert attention and criticism from him.

The town politicians of Winthrop have been busy since the Town Government Association got into power at the last town election. The association bosses, about four minutes after the votes were counted, elected Ernest R. Buffinton of Boston and once in a while of Winthrop as chief of the police department, ousting William A. McNeill, the former chief, for "political reasons," as the bosses openly declared. McNeill was then appointed chief of the Revere police department by the selectmen of that town.

There was so much criticism of the Buffinton-McNeill affair that the powers that be decided to allow public interest in Winthrop political affairs for a little while. Now, on the authority of Chief Buffinton, comes the announcement of the coming shake-up in the town's fire department.

"You look out for a shake-up in the fire department around the first of May," said Chief Buffinton to-day. "I guess it will make everybody forget all about me. I hope so. Everybody seems to be after me."

The Winthrop fire department consists of one chief, six sure-enough-regular-on-the-job firemen, with a reserve force of forty-five men, who put on their fire hats and their badges when the whistle blows twice, and go to the fire as soon as they can find out where it is. "Bud" Floyd, the present chief, is a part of the old regime in the town government, as was the former police chief, McNeill.

HOW "SILENT SMITH" DIED, TOLD BY DUKE

Body of Millionaire Arrives at Honolulu on Way to America.

Special Cable to Hearst News Service
Copyright, 1907, by W. R. Hearst.

HONOLULU, via San Francisco, April 23.—Mrs. J. H. Smith and her daughter, accompanied by the Duke and Duchess of Manchester, arrived on the steamer Siberia, to-day, with the remains of James Henry Smith, from Kobe, en route to New York.

The widow was a recluse during the entire voyage from Yokohama, excepting late at night, after the passengers retired, for occasional walks on the deck, making her only public appearance in the morning for breakfast. The party will be met in San Francisco by the Zimmerman private car for immediate conveyance to New York.

The Duke of Manchester gave the Hearst News Service correspondent the following account of the death of Smith:

Pneumonia Cause of Death.

"Smith died of septic pneumonia on the night of March 27, as a result of Brights' disease," said the Duke. "To the last he did not realize his condition and no one in the party, including Smith himself, expected death.

"Off Singapore the disease first indicated itself by toothache. Smith complained of pains in the mouth, and the jaw was considerably swollen. We went to Singapore, where a dentist removed several nerves without apparent benefit. The party continued on to Hongkong, and it was remarked that Smith appeared in even better spirits than usual.

Rough Trip to Hongkong.

"The ship had a very rough trip to Hongkong, and Smith's condition grew gradually worse. Finally it was decided at Hongkong to send the yacht to England and continue the trip to Japan and homeward on the regular steamer.

"Dr. J. Noble, a leading dentist of Hongkong, was secured to accompany Smith on the voyage. Smith and party remained in Hong Kong for a fortnight, and consultations of physicians were frequent, but they were unable positively to determine the ailment."

Mr. Smith made his will the day he married, but it was not signed until after the ceremony. The Duke of Manchester was present when the will was drawn up by Solicitor Gurdon of London, but is unacquainted with the details, as he did not sign as a witness.

The Smiths and the Duke of Manchester took a drive about Honolulu during the stay of the steamer here to-day.

FIND DEAD BODY OF INFANT NEAR RIVER

RANDOLPH, Vt., April 23.—The police are to-day investigating the finding of the dead body of an infant on the banks of the river near the home of Charles Whitten. A little girl found the bundle containing the body. The infant had been dead for several weeks. The body bore many contusions.

REJECT ROOSEVELT IN PENNSYLVANIA

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 23.—Mr. Bluestone of Allegheny County offered a resolution in the House last night, asking President Roosevelt to be a candidate for a second elective term as President.

The resolution was defeated by a viva voce vote without debate.

"TOM" PIERCE DIVORCE TRIAL THIS WEEK

The uncontested divorce case instituted by Mrs. Thomas W. Pierce, the noted society horsewoman, against her millionaire husband, will be called on the Thursday or Friday docket of the Salem Superior Court, this week, by Judge Hardy.

The proceedings were put over until then at the request of Attorney Samuel H. Hudson of Boston, Mrs. Pierce's counsel, who informed Judge Hardy that numerous witnesses in support of his client's divorce plea lived outside of the State in Newport, New York and other cities, and none could attend court session earlier than Thursday.

The divorce proceedings, which were filed January 10, 1907, created a sensation among the friends of Mrs. "Tom" Pierce and her husband's society friends. The horsewoman's bill sets forth that on or about November 1, 1904, her husband struck her; that on or about December 1, same year, he struck her again and pushed her about; that on many other days he abused and treated her roughly, and that he was otherwise cruel.

Mrs. Pierce, who is now a resident of Great Neck, Long Island, asks that libelee pay her counsel fees and suitable alimony. There is no provision asked for in the matter of Mrs. Pierce's son, Thomas W. Pierce, Jr., five years old. The libelee is reported to be living on his ranch in Mexico. His Winter home is in Salem, and he has a Summer estate in Topsfield, Mass.

Not long ago it was reported that there would be a fight over the possession of the boy, but it is announced to-day that the divorce case will not be contested.

Mrs. "Tom" Pierce was known as "Madcap Alice Crowninshield Rogers," before she married Pierce, who is a millionaire. Jacob Rogers, a New York broker and brother of Mrs. Pierce, is said to be assisting his sister in engineering her divorce proceedings.

ROWLEY CALLS HIS WIFE CRUEL; ASKS DIVORCE

Suing his wife, Anna, whom he married barely six months ago, after a romantic meeting on a railroad train during a trip he was making to the Middle West, Clarence W. Rowley, prominent Boston attorney, and a leading candidate for the Republican nomination for District Attorney of Suffolk County, alleges in his libel that his attractive bride has been cruel and abusive to him during their short term of married life. By the placing of the case on the docket yesterday, it became known that the papers had been filed, although extraordinary precautions had been taken to keep the proceedings from becoming public. Mr. Rowley refuses to discuss the suit or say in what manner his wife has been cruel to him.

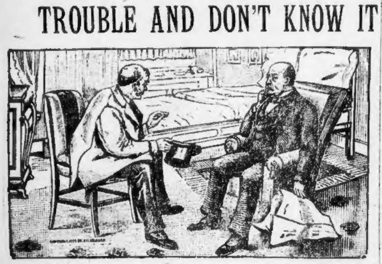

Lawyer Rowley is already a divorced man, his former wife, Mary W., being awarded a decree nisi from him in the Superior Court in Lowell in December, 1904. The former wife is a physician, living in Wellesley Hills. Little is known in this city, even among Mr. Rowley's intimate friends, about his second wife, whom he married only a few months ago. It is said to have been a case of love at first sight. At any rate as the story of the courtship is known to the lawyer's friends, the wedding took place within a few weeks after Mr. Rowley's return.

Clarence W. Rowley is recognized as a lawyer of ability, and it was due to his forcible presentation of arguments that a fourth trial was recently decreed by the Supreme Court of the Commonwealth to Dr. John Sinclair. Dr. Sinclair, however, dispensed with the services of the lawyer and conducted his own case with such success that he was acquitted. Mr. Rowley has undertaken what other lawyers have regarded as "forlorn hopes," and in many instances has been rewarded with victory.

SHIP ENGINEER ENDS OWN LIFE

NEW YORK, April 23.—Henry Schaffer, second assistant engineer on the steamship San Marco of the Mallory line, was found dying in his berth to-day with his throat cut. Captain Davidson of the San Marco said that Schaffer had been suffering with throat trouble and was afraid that this malady would prevent his promotion.

THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND DON'T KNOW IT

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, therefore, when through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue, fatal results are sure to follow.

Your other organs may need attention—but your kidneys most, because they do most and should have attention first.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, because as soon as your kidneys begin to get better they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable curative power has been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best.

Wilson, Conn., Feb. 18th, 1906.

Dear Sirs:

"A man could not be in any worse condition than I was with kidney and bladder trouble. I doctored with several good doctors, and one physician told me I had Bright's Disease and that I would not live over six months. Another told me it was gall stones. I had severe pains in my kidneys all the while, could not stoop over, would be dizzy, could not lie down without someone helped me up; my back was weak and pained me; urine was as thick as cream and it would scald me something dreadful. I had to get up many times in the night to urinate.

I took Swamp-Root and to-day I am a well man and never felt better. All of my troubles have gone and show no signs of returning. I take my oath that Swamp-Root put me where I am to-day and I can prove it by acquaintances."

Very truly yours,
E. H. BAND.

Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything, but it promptly overcomes kidney, liver and bladder troubles, the symptoms of which are—obliged to pass your water frequently night and day, smarting or irritation in passing, brickdust or sediment in the urine, headache, backache, lame back, dizziness, poor digestion, sleeplessness, nervousness, heart disturbance due to bad kidney trouble, skin eruptions from bad blood, neuralgia, rheumatism, diabetes, bloating, irritability, wornout feeling, lack of ambition, may be loss of flesh, sallow complexion or Bright's disease.

If your water, when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling, or has a cloudy appearance, it is also evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is for sale at drug stores the world over in bottles of two sizes and two prices—fifty cents and one dollar. Remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

SPECIAL NOTE—In order to prove the wonderful merits of Swamp-Root you may have a sample bottle and a book of valuable information, both sent absolutely free by mail. The book contains many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy they needed. The value and success of Swamp-Root are so well known that you are advised to send for a sample bottle. In sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure to say you read this generous offer in the Boston Daily American. The genuineness of this offer is guaranteed.

MOXIE

PHYSICIANS RECOMMEND MOXIE

The modern doctor fights shy of alcoholic beverages as well as the unnecessary use of powerful drugs. The fact that Moxie is non-alcoholic and does not contain a particle of any ingredient that is injurious accounts for its popularity with the medical profession. Thousands of them drink it and recommend their patients to use it as often as they may desire, for they have learned that it really is sustaining to the nerves, and for this reason those who drink it experience nights of sweet, restful sleep and days free from many of the little ills that mar the pleasure of living.

Moxie drinkers eat better, feel better and accomplish more and better work because of its use.

A case kept in the house at all times will be found to be a source of pleasure and benefit.

Sold by all Grocers, Druggists and Dealers in temperance beverages. $2.50 a case, 25 cents per bottle, 5 cents a glass at all fountains.

MUNYON'S SUCCESS

In Curing Old, Chronic Cases of

RHEUMATISM

Patients Given Up as Incurable

Speedily Restored to Health by

Munyon's 3 X Rheumatism Remedy

I want every rheumatic to throw away all medicines, all liniments, all plasters, and try MUNYON'S 3 X RHEUMATISM CURE. No matter what your doctor may say, no matter what your druggist may say, no matter what your friends may say, no matter how bigoted or prejudiced you may be against all advertised remedies, go at once to your druggist and get a bottle of 3 X RHEUMATISM CURE. Price $1.00. (He will get it for you if he has none in stock.) There are 160 doses in a bottle, and as one lady says: "Every tablet is worth more than a diamond of the same size." A few doses will take away all aches and pains, and a cure generally effected before one bottle is used.

Remember, this remedy contains no salicylic acid, no opium, cocaine, morphine, or other harmful drugs. It is put up under the guarantee of the Pure Food & Drugs Act, but my guarantee I consider the best. Try the remedy, and if you are not satisfied, bring the empty bottle to me and I will refund your money.

If you have any other ailment remember that we put up a separate remedy for each disease. We have no "cure-alls." Our Cold Cure cures colds and coughs; is worth more than all the emulsions, all the oils, all the balsams and cough cures that have ever been made. You can prove this statement by the investment of 25 cents.

My Kidney Cure, I believe, has saved more lives and cured more chronic cases of bladder and kidney ailment than any known remedy. Money back whenever it fails.

My Dyspepsia and Stomach Remedy enables one to eat a good, square meal and digest it.

My Constipation Ointment gives a natural movement in from two to three minutes, and is rapidly taking the place of all cathartics and weakening nostrums.

My Headache Cure stops all headaches in from 3 to 10 minutes, and is a good heart and stomach tonic.

All persons suffering with Piles I most earnestly ask to try my Pile Ointment. It stops all itching and pain instantly. Money back if it fails to cure, and cure quickly.

If you need medical advice address Munyon, 53d and Jefferson sts., Phila., Pa.

How Good Food may Turn to Poison.

DECAY is not digestion, you know, even when it takes place in the stomach.

Food decayed in the body after being eaten is as dangerous to health as food decayed before being eaten.

Food nourishes or poisons, just according to how long it remains in the Bowels undigested.

* * *

Most of the Digestion occurs in the thirty feet of Intestines.

They are lined with a set of little mouths, that squeeze Digestive Juices into the Food eaten.

The Intestines are also lined with millions of little suction pumps, that draw the Nutriment from Food, as it passes them in going through.

But, when the Bowel-Muscles are weak, the Food moves too slowly to stimulate the little Gastric Mouths and there is no flow or too little flow of Digestive Juice, to change the food into nourishment.

Then, the food decays in the Bowels, and the little suction pumps draw Poison from the decayed Food, into the blood, instead of the Nutrition they should have drawn.

* * * *

Now, Cascarets contain the only combination of drugs that Stimulates these Muscles of the Bowels and Intestines just as a Cold Bath, or open-air Exercise, stimulates a Lazy Man.

Cascarets therefore act like Exercise.

They produce the same sort of Natural result that a Six Mile walk in the country would produce without any injurious Chemical effect.

The Vest Pocket Cascaret Box is sold by all Druggists at Ten Cents.

Be sure you get the genuine, made only by the Sterling Remedy Company, and never sold in bulk. Every tablet stamped "CCC." 749

WROTE THEY'D FIND HER IN RIVER

Pretty Delia R. Beaudin disappears, leaving note saying she could not live any longer, and to seek her at bottom of Merrimac.

MANCHESTER, N. H., April 23.—Apparently no nearer to-day to the solution of the mystery surrounding the disappearance of pretty Delia R. Beaudin, of No. 58 Winter street, who has been missing from her home since last Saturday, when she left a note saying that she could stand life no longer and that her body would be found lying at the bottom of the Merrimack River. Manchester policemen are doing everything in their power to find if the girl really made good her threat or has left the city.

Delia Beaudin is seventeen years of age. She has never been troubled about anything so far as known and her father, Alfred Beaudin, an industrious stonecutter, a well-known citizen of the West Side, tells the police that he is at an entire loss to account for the affair.

Delia left her home Saturday evening with the intention, so she told her folks, of coming across the river to this side. During the night her father found a note written by his daughter, but not signed, on a scrap of paper, telling that she had gone to drown herself in the Merrimack River, after drinking carbolic acid. The note reads:

"There is only one place for me and it is where I am now lying, in the Merrimack River. I done it because I could not live any longer. Now I am out of everybody's way. There will be no fuss to be made over me. If you want my locket and chain go to Geoffnon's jewelry store and get it by this name, D. R. Beaudin, and I am gone forever.

"I had one dollar and twenty cents and I gave it away. I given the clothes I had on me to some one. I drank one bottle of carbolick acid and then plonged."

The note was not addressed to any member of the Beaudin family. With the note written by Delia was another note written on a half sheet of letter paper and signed "Alice." This was presumably from a friend whom the police are now hunting for, to throw light on the mystery. It follows:

"Dear Delle:—What is the troub? Arn't you coming over and going to Nashua? If not answer immediately. Your locket and chain is in * * * by Marshall's. Your friend,
"ALICE."

The name of the place mentioned in this note, where the girl's locket and chain are supposed to be, is hardly discernible. It looks like "Lemay" or "Lamay."

Whether the note left by Delia Beaudin was merely a blind to conceal her real intentions or whether she is really at the bottom of the river the police are to-day hard at work trying to determine.

Mr. Beaudin reported the case to the police on Sunday. He brought the two notes and a picture of his daughter to the police station. Policeman Whalen, investigating the case, found a picture of Delia, taken with a professional roller skater who was here some days ago. It was in her trunk and the police think that she might possibly have eloped with this man.

However, the father and many friends of the young woman will not believe this for an instant.

GIVE LINEMEN 35 CENTS MORE A DAY

LARCHMONT REPORT MUST BE AMENDED

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The report of the special board which investigated the Larchmont disaster, received by Supervising Inspector General Uhler of the steamboat inspection service, and presented to Secretary Straus of the Department of Commerce and Labor, does not satisfy the officials. Certain essential facts are lacking, and the testimony of several survivors of the collision, which did not accompany the report, ought to be included, they say.

The schooner is said to have been sailed in full compliance with the navigating rules. After reciting the testimony of witnesses and recounting the conditions on the night of the disaster, the report says:

"We find that from the time the schooner Harry Knowlton and steamer Larchmont approached each other in such a way as to involve risk of collision that the schooner Harry Knowlton was navigated in full compliance with the provisions of Article 21, Steering and Sailing Rules for Atlantic and Pacific coast inland waters; that the movements of the steamer Larchmont were in direct violation of Articles 20 and 22 of said Sailing and Steering Rules, and we therefore attribute the loss of the steamer Larchmont and the schooner Harry Knowlton to careless and unskilful navigation on the part of the first pilot of the Larchmont, John L. Anson."

MILLIONAIRE WINS TALENTED HUB MUSICIAN

To-morrow Miss Agnes Josephine Herrick of Dorchester, talented musician herself and the daughter of two celebrated choir singers, Mr. and Mrs. James Herrick, will become the wife of the young millionaire manufacturer, Andrew W. Dodd.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Dodd will sail for Europe, where they will spend six months in a wedding journey. Upon their return they will live at Swampscott, where Mr. Dodd has business interests, as he has in Salem and Gloucester.

The ceremony of to-morrow will be performed by the Rev. Father Reagan of Roxbury, a friend of the Herrick family. The wedding will occur at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning in the rectory of St. Peter's Church.

Miss Annie Divver, a cousin of the bride, will be maid of honor.

Charles Devonshire will be the best man. The bride is a pianist of exceptional ability. Since she was six years old she has been a pupil of Charles McLaughlin. She is a graduate of the New England Conservatory of Music.

Fight Hard Against Letting the World Make You Bitter

By Beatrice Fairfax

NO matter how roughly life may treat you, fight desperately hard against allowing yourself to grow hard and bitter.

A woman's sweetness and gentleness are her greatest charms and her strongest weapons. To be hard and bitter and cynical is to lose all lovableness.

You may have the hardest kind of luck; everything may go wrong; but as long as you are brave and sweet over it you will at least have the sympathy of your friends.

If your misfortunes turn you crabbed and bitter, no one will feel one bit sorry for you.

A cynical woman turns all the milk of human kindness into vinegar. According to her creed there is nothing good and nothing true. She ascribes false motives to every kindness.

To be sweet-tempered, to take things bravely and cheerfully, and not to take offence at every fancied slight, should be the aim of every girl who desires to make herself popular.

Imagination

HALF the time when you take offence the cause lies in your own imagination.

I am not advising you to be poor-spirited and to allow yourself to be imposed upon, but merely to use your common sense and look well into a thing before you fly off the handle and look upon yourself as insulted.

I know a young woman who is always fancying herself slighted. Sometimes she is offended at me for hours, and I have not the least idea what at.

She is not a very pleasing companion when in that mood, so I always leave her alone. After a while she emerges from her cloud of sulkiness, looking rather ashamed of herself, but it does not prevent her from doing the same thing the next time she fancies she has cause.

Woman is supposed to be lovable and gentle. That is one reason why men seek her. A restful, sweet-natured woman can leaven an entire household.

Don't try to make sharp, sarcastic speeches. Sarcasm on the lips of a young girl is not attractive.

You may think it clever and smart to say sharp things, but men won't think any the better of you for uttering them.

Don't Be Funny

NEVER try to be funny at the expense of other people. A woman cannot be too sweet and charitable in her views of life and people.

If you say unkind things about other girls, men will only think you are jealous, and will take the side of the person you are reviling.

If you can't bring yourself to be charitable, keep quiet and don't say anything.

Remember always, "Least said soonest mended."

People grow extremely weary of the person who never sees the nice side of things or of people.

If everyone is down on you and you have no friends, the fault is yours alone, you may be quite sure of that.

The sunny-hearted, sweet-tempered people are the ones who hold their friends. Bitterness and gloom will drive everyone away from you.

Sweetness and gentleness are the qualities that make a girl most lovable.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

A FALSE FRIEND

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl keeping company with a young man whom I love very much. My trouble is that my lady friend cares a great deal for him also. She tried not long ago to part us by telling him things about me that were not true. He spoke nicely to me about it and promised not to believe anything that he heard outside. Last week she asked him to take her home from a ball. Should I give him up on account of her after he told me he loved me? L. F. B.

NO. If he likes you the best, there is no reason why you should give him up. However, I would not continue my friendship with the girl if I were you. She is not sincere and will make trouble if you are not careful.

A SUITABLE MATCH

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a widower of forty-three, with a family of several children. A lady of forty, who lives very near to me, has attracted me so much that I am infatuated with her. She is always very pleasant with me and never shows any disposition to avoid me; but I can't summon enough courage to ask for her hand in marriage. She is to me a woman who would make an admirable wife and I am desirous of finding a mother for my children. What would you suggest? DILEMMA.

I SHOULD advise you to ask her by all means. She is suited to you in age and probably would be a good mother to your children. Do not be timid, pluck up courage and go ahead.

BROWN BREAD

HALF cup of graham meal, one cup bread flour, one cup yellow meal, half cup molasses, one teaspoon soda, one small teaspoon salt. Mix with cold water until it is a thick batter, not as thick as cake batter. Steam three hours. MISS E. P. KING.
No. 205 Lincoln street, Boston.

ORANGE AND RAISIN PIE

ONE teacup of raisins, one orange. Chop the peel and stir the raisins in a little water. Cut the orange in small slices and put it in with two tablespoons of flour, two tablespoons of sugar or more if orange is very sour. Bake with two crusts.

MRS. O. BARRETT.
No. 163 Chestnut street, Waltham.

POUND CAKE

BEAT one cup butter to a cream; add gradually one and a half cups of granulated sugar and the well-beaten yolks of four eggs. Sift together thoroughly two cups flour and one level teaspoon baking powder. Add to the first mixture alternately with half cup milk. Lastly, add the well-beaten whites of four eggs and the flavoring. Beat thoroughly, as upon that decides the failure or success of this cake. Bake in a moderate oven.

The Boston American Pattern

A CHARMING MODE FOR THE LITTLE GIRL

No. 5,689—The graceful lines of this little Princess dress lend a charming air of quaintness to the little figure that is very becoming. The design shows a dainty development of nainsook and all-over embroidery. If preferred lace insertion or hand embroidery may be used for decoration as the plain front affords a fine place for a bit of hand work. Lawn, dimity, linen and nainsook are all suitable for reproduction. For a child of three years three yards of 36-inch material will be required.

No. 5,689—Sizes for 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 years.

NEAT SUMMER DRESS OF NATURAL PONGEE

PONGEE in every color and shade is to be very much worn this Summer. This dress is the natural shade, trimmed with a tiny silk cord of brown.

The waist is made in jumper style, over a blouse of fine cream-colored batiste. The design embroidered on the waist and above the hem on the skirt is very simple, a sort of half daisy design and can be followed quite easily by the home dressmaker.

The little tie and sash belt are finished at the ends with brown silk tassels to match the color of the ribbon.

"The Bracebridge Diamonds, Or, The Heart of a Woman"

CHAPTER CII.—Continued

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

"CERTAINLY. Why should I?" came the answer in strident tones; and, peeping through the crack of the door Frank could see that Suzanne had bridled up, and with head thrown back and arms akimbo, now stood up confronting the manager with the aggressive stop full on.

"The question is an insult," said she. "Give me back the necklace at once. It is like you Americans to insult an honest woman. Do you think I stole it from the gentleman, then. Give it back at once, I say. I will take it somewhere else where people have proper manners."

"My dear young lady," said the manager, "take my advice and calm yourself. We are not accustomed to histrionics here. Better be seated again. Take my advice. Ah! That is better. Now, I am seriously afraid that you have placed yourself in a somwhat awkward position."

"How? Why?" she asked, in a voice that had suddenly lost all its shrillness.

"Why? Because the gentleman who owned this necklace never gave it to you, that is why."

From his narrow point of espial Frank could see that Suzanne's face had gone deathly white, and that from the twitching of her lips she could for the instant frame no suitable reply.

"Do you hear what I say?" he repeated. "He, Mr. Bracebridge, never gave you this necklace. Now, how did it come into your possession?"

He waited a moment for a reply, and then tapped the bell on the table. Frank at once entered the room.

The manager looked up.

"This is the young woman, Mr. Bracebridge, that I spoke to you about," said he. "She has brought me this necklace, worth a fortune, for which she now asks $15,000. She says that your cousin gave it to her. What is to be done in the matter? I think I had better leave it in your hands."

Confessions

"Quite so," Frank replied, and then turned suddenly upon the by this time thoroughly frightened young woman.

"You are Suzanne," he said in French, transfixing her with a glance.

For a moment her lips seemed glued together, and her breath came in short, convulsive gasps.

"Do you hear what I say? Your name is Suzanne?"

"Y-Yes, sir."

"And until quite recently you were in the service of the Baroness Slavinsky, in New York."

She nodded.

"And you have a friend you call Bibi?"

She made no reply at all to this; merely stared blankly and with parted lips.

"To whom," Frank pursued, "you wrote this letter," and he once more had recourse to his pocketbook. "It is a very curious letter. Look at it. You recognize your own handwriting and signature, do you not?"

By this time she was speechless with fear. Frank waited a moment for her answer, and as none came, he turned to the manager.

"I think," he said, "that you had better send for the police."

He at once arose.

"As you will," said he. "The matter is now entirely in your hands."

As he moved toward the door the terrified girl suddenly sprang to her feet and clasped Frank's arm.

Plea for Mercy

"No, no, no! Pour pitie!" she cried.

"Well, Mamselle Suzanne," said Frank, "it is for you to decide. Either you will consent to come with me or we must send for the police at once."

"But where will you take me?" she asked, with an appealing look.

"Where, perhaps, you will be able to explain a good many things. If you give me truthful answers to my questions I may—I probably will—be lenient. If you decline this proposition I shall ascertain what I want to know all the same elsewhere, but it will certainly then go very hard with you indeed. Come now, which shall it be?"

"I will go with you," she answered.

"Very well. You certainly have chosen the wisest course. Never mind about the police," he added in English. "This young lady has consented to place herself in my custody for the present. By the way, I will take that necklace with me."

"Why, certainly, certainly," said the manager, as he snapped the case and handed it over to Frank. Then they shook hands, and Suzanne and Frank left the shop together.

He hailed a passing cab, assisted the young woman into it, and the next moment they were bowling swiftly along. For a long time not a word was spoken. At last, between curiosity and fear, she began to ply him with questions, to which he made one invariable answer:

"All in good time, mademoiselle; all in good time."

Over-Neatness Is One of the Aggravations of Married Life

By Dorothy Dix

Dorothy Dix Says the Over-Neat Woman Is About as Provoking to Live With as a Porcupine

WHAT is the most aggravating thing in married life?

Is it over-neatness?

A host of haggard-eyed and harassed men, pausing to wipe their feet on the door mat before the houses their money supports, will affirm, with tears in their eyes, that no other woman is so uncomfortable to live with as the lady whose god is cleanliness and her heaven order.

"Don't talk to me about the curse of temper, or the sin of extravagance, or the weakness of shiftlessness, or any of the other failings of the feminine sex after it gets married," says the victim of the notable housekeeper.

"I tell you they are nothing—mere interesting eccentricities—in a woman, compared to the diabolical sufferings the man has to endure who is afflicted with a wife with the place-for-everything-and-everything-in-its-place mania.

"Listen to me while I inform you that the curse of rum isn't in it with the curse of soapsuds and scouring powders, and that men are driven to drink in their frantic search for some place that isn't too clean and neat to be sat down in comfortably.

His Tale of Woe

"That's where my tale of woe comes in. My house is too immaculate to be used, and I've done a million miles walking stunt in it, circling round and round trying to find some one nice, home-like, unadorned dirty spot in which I could flop down, stretch out my legs, drop cigar ashes on the floor, open out my newspaper, and be at peace.

"Vain hope! Fallacious dream! Unrewarded research! There's no such place. We are spick and span from cellar to garret—and as miserable as a small boy in his dress-up Sunday clothes.

"And that's the way I live. I exist in terror of dropping something, or breaking something, or upsetting something. I'm the bond slave of order. The poor, helpless prisoner of neatness. The writhing victim on the rack being slowly tortured to death by tidiness.

Too Self-Righteous

"As for doing what I like, or taking any liberties in my home—such as having my old, comfortable chair when I like it—I wouldn't dream of attempting anything so foolhardy.

"My wife wouldn't stand for it for a minute. She'd explain to me, patiently and kindly and pityingly—but firmly and irrevocably—that I was mussing things, and I would have to meekly acquiesce, for you can't argue with a woman who is the model housekeeper of your circle.

"She is set upon a pinnacle of her own perfections and issues commands like a goddess. Besides, there's nothing that makes people so self-righteous as to be too clean. They may be examples to us all, but give me the great unwashed for real likable and livable companionship.

"My! but I have to walk on eggs trying not to muss things up more than a male animal about a house is bound to.

"As I put my key in the latch of the front door of an evening I hear my Maria's voice floating out to me: 'Will-yum! did you wipe your feet good on the mat? I don't want the hall floor tracked up.'

No Cosy Corner

"'Will-yum! Be careful how you hang up your coat and hat. You bent one of the leaves of the fern in the jardiniere on the hat rack yesterday.'

"If I'm tired and throw myself down on a couch to rest, I find there is none of the forty-seven different pillows that encumber it on which I am at liberty to lay my aching head.

"'For pity's sake, Will-yum Smithers, haven't you got any pride in your home or consideration for your poor, over-worked wife, that you go and rumple up a couch cover like that, and actually lie down on my best embroidered sofa cushions?' cries my wife in utter exasperation, and when I abandon the couch and try to draw a comfortable chair into a good light for reading she's at me again.

"'There you go,' she cries, 'mussing up the tidies, and upsetting the room. Why can't you let the chairs stay where I place them, and where they look best?'

Used to Be Easy

"For magazines and newspapers my wife cherishes an animosity that is venomous. She looks upon them as sentient things sent by the evil one himself to torment her, and upset her nothing-out-of-place house.

"She's got mysterious places—hidden, secret, recondite—where she pops them the minute I lay them down, and I've spent the most of the time since I've been married trying to run down clues as to the whereabouts of the morning paper or the magazine I brought home the night before.

"Now, I never had any trouble finding my cloths before I was married. I dumped my haberdashery into a drawer, and when I wanted a collar or tie, or shirt, I just went to it and stirred things round and round until the desired article came to the surface. It was dead easy, and a cinch for finding things.

"How is it now? I haven't any bureau. I haven't any drawer to put things in, nor anything to put in one if I had it. My wife has taken my things and hidden them where a Sherlock Holmes couldn't find them.

Any Change Better

"As for smoking or drinking, what with having a woman with a persecuted expression pick up matches after me, or a lynx-eyed female watching to see that I didn't ruin a table by setting a wet glass upon it, I've no pleasure left in either, nor in my home.

"What I long for is a place where I can throw things about, that is nice and merry and untidy, and where the smell of soapsuds and the sight of a broom have never penetrated.

"Maybe I'd get tired of being comfortable and dirty after awhile, but I don't know. Anyway it would be a change, and you take it from me that an over-neat woman is just about as provoking to live with as a porcupine."

Is it true, ladies?

MARRIED READERS TELL THEIR OWN AGGRAVATIONS

MARRIED FOR A HOME

DOROTHY DIX:

YOU ask what is the most aggravating thing in married life. I answer: To learn that your wife married you not from love asserted, but for a home, and an opportunity to spend most all her time night and day reading all kinds of novels, and yourself and home neglected. M. D.

HE DRINKS

DOROTHY DIX:

THERE is no worse thing on earth than drunkenness. At best your husband is nothing but a bum; he is harsh and untrue to his wife, and his children do not respect him. But for all that we are married for better or worse, so we must be as happy as we can and trust we may have better sons to be husbands of the future.

MRS. E. F.

WHITE LIES

DOROTHY DIX:

THE most aggravating thing in married life is lying—those little white lies that creep into big ones as the habit grows and the occasion arises. Husband and wife should be truthful and honorable with each other, for, as the old adage goes, "murder will out," and sooner or later that little word is going to creep in and mar the peace and happiness of one if not both. K.

JEALOUSY AN INSULT

DOROTHY DIX:

I HAVE been married six years; the most aggravating thing to me is a husband's jealousy. I cannot make my husband understand that our courtship days are over, and that where jealousy was once a compliment it is now an insult and the most aggravating thing in life.

MRS. P. H. R. F. A.

HOW TO TAKE CARE OF THE BABY

WHEN washing feeding bottles first rinse thoroughly, and then well wash in hot water in which boracic crystals in the proportion of one level teaspoonful to a pint have been dissolved. Afterward well rinse and leave in water till required.

When putting baby to bed see that the ear on which he is lying is not doubled up in any way, and see that bonnet strings are always tied over and never put behind the ears. Outstanding ears would be far less common if these little points were attended to from the first.

In case of burning, it is the shock to the system more often than the burn itself that is likely to prove fatal. Before dressing even a fairly slight burn some stimulant, such as a little warm coffee, should be given. In severe cases—to prevent collapse—it is a good plan to add a drop or two of brandy to the coffee.

Insures Good Sleep

Some children are very restless at night, and get into the bad habit of kicking off the bedclothes.

To prevent this, sew a large button securely to each of the four corners of the elderdown or quilt; then attach a long tape loop to the corresponding corners of the cot.

Fasten the loops to the buttons, and however much the child may toss and turn, there will be no fear of the covering sliding off.

Don't punish a child severely for a first offence; speak gently to him and show how wrong he has been, and remember never to punish him when you are in a temper yourself, and when you do punish, make quite sure that it is really for a fault, and not for something that has simply caused you annoyance.

Putting a child to bed earlier than usual is generally an effective punishment, and one that can do no harm, for in nine cases out of ten naughtiness and temper are caused, or, at all events, aggravated, by over-tiredness, or stomach or liver derangement.

The best soap to use for baby is the pure, unscented kind. This is not cheap, of course, but if bought and stored in a dry room it goes a long way and is really not at all extravagant.

Babies with rough skin should have a little milk added to the bath water. A rough skin generally means there is a tendency to eczema, and the skin needs soothing. This the milk does.

Learning to Walk

Never try to teach baby to walk. He will try of his own accord as soon as his legs are strong enough. If weight is placed on them too soon there is great danger of bow legs.

Children are always cutting or hurting their fingers in some way or other. It is a good plan—so as to be ready for emergencies—to collect a number of different sized finger-stalls, each provided with two narrow tapes by which to secure it to the wrist.

A roll of antiseptic lint is another useful addition to the family medicine chest, and a pot of boracic ointment should always be on hand, also a bottle of linseed oil and lime water, mixed in equal proportions, to use for burns and scalds.

However children may be dressed their clothes should bear the stamp of simplicity. Costly materials, laces and stitchery can, if made up in a neat, childish way, look as simple as things that only cost quarter their price.

"Frothy" clothes, all frills and furbelows, are very bad for children, as they help to make them self-conscious and vain.

The Helpless Girl Is a "Back Number"

THE helpless woman is the most preeminently selfish of all women. And the worst of it is that it is a very hard selfishness to fight against, as she is usually sweet-tempered in her tyranny.

In her home life before marriage she is always the one who gets up last in the morning, and shirks work all day long.

Tears come easily to her eyes. She knows the power of her babyish, appealing way, and uses it to the utmost.

Her mother or sisters make her clothes, tidy her drawers, write her notes, make excuses for all her shortcomings, and do their level best to add to her selfishness in every way.

With men she has a wistful, "please-take-care-of-me" air that appeals to their chivalry.

If she is plain they are not easily imposed upon, but if she is pretty they are lost.

To-day, however, men are beginning to realize that the self-reliant girl is not necessarily unfeminine, and that she makes a better friend or wife than the girl who is sweet and helpless.

The helpless woman is a drawback to her husband from start to finish.

She fails in all her duties as a helpmate. When he is discouraged she takes her cue from him, and is even more so than he. Instead of cheering him and looking on the bright side she sinks into despondency; and his main care is, "What will become of this helpless creature who is dependent upon me?"

When things are bright she is better, but even then she is a poor type of womanhood. Sometimes when the self-reliant girl sees how easily her helpless sister goes through life, and how much is done for her, she is moved to envy, and wonders if after all, it is worth while to be capable.

If it is any comfort to her, I can assure her that capability, as long as it is kept in womanly channels, is the very best asset she can have.

The helpless girl is daily growing more and more of a back number, and some time in the near future, when man comes quite to his proper senses, she will be an utterly unknown quantity.

TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

"CLEO" IS MELODRAMA, WHERE EMOTION EXUDES

Except for the fact that the cabmen outside were crying "Cab for Hotel Lenox," and that many in the audience wore evening clothes, one would have thought that he was in the popular South End theatre instead of the Park last evening, while he sat patiently through the dreary wanderings of "Cleo." This is the piece over which Mrs. Leslie Carter had trouble, and after seeing it no one can blame her. Nance O'Neil takes Mrs. Carter's place, an extremely emotional role, and really does herself credit in it. But the piece is rank melodrama of a coarse-fibred type, and suited only for a third-class house.

It was given its first performance in Boston last evening. Its author is Edwin Milton Royle, author of the "Squaw Man"—but what a difference! "Cleo," he frankly admits, was suggested by "L'Article 47." It should be renamed, and called "L'Article 23." There are any number of bright lines in it, but the emotion is laid on so thickly that it runs over into the orchestra pit. Miss O'Neil makes the mistake of being tragic at all times. She really rises to great heights, is conscientious, sincere, but she deserves a better medium than this.

With judicious trimming and rewriting "Cleo" could be made into a strong play—the meat is there. The company could not be improved, for W. L. Abingdon, William Courtleigh, William J. Ferguson, McKee Rankin, Mabel Morrison and Lizzie Hudson Collier have exceptionally good parts. The scenery is a delight, and one can readily believe the rumor that already nearly $100,000 has been spent on the play.

HACKETT BACK IN SOCIETY PLAY

A most enthusiastic reception was accorded James K. Hackett at the Tremont last evening, in the return to Boston of "The Walls of Jericho," which this actor has scored one of the greatest of his triumphs. The story, from the pen of Sutro, is well known. The hero is a man of moral strength, big of heart and aspiration. The scenes are laid within the "smartest" society precincts of London.

ETHEL LEVEY SINGS OF LOVE

Ethel Levey, in a dove-colored dress and with a collection of songs especially-written-to-order-for-her, appeared at Keith's last night. Those of the especially prepared songs which gave her a chance to employ her delicious Southern dialect were received more kindly than was a doleful ballad concerning unrequitted love. During the rendition of this ballad Miss Levey threw into the audience at least 20 cents worth of carnations.

John C. Rice and Sally Cohen played briskly their neat little sketch, "All the World Loves a Lover," and May Edouin, in another sketch, did a protean specialty with much rapidity and charm. Smith and Campbell exuded many yards of "sidewalk conversation," and Leona Thurber was present with a quartette of blackberries, ... and they were rapturously received. The Four Casting Dunbars; Arthur Borain and Annie Nevaro, acrobats; Hill and Hill, ...kayologists; the Willis Family, musicians, and a lot of other good acts compose the bill.

GAIETY GIRLS GET HONORS WITH WHITE

Pat White and the Gaiety Girls divided honors at the Old Howard yesterday. ...ite is one of the most eccentric fellows ...ld Howard has seen. The burlesque ... a dazzler. The olio included Amos, comedy juggler; the Three Deltons, gymnasts; Lewis and Green, conversations; the Velde Trio in "Looping the Lo... Rene Washburn and Belle Austin, Ed... a Francis and her Arabs, Mitchell and Cain, Harrigan and Giles, Hebrew impersonators; the Demonelle Trio, contortionists; Dunn and Barry, military singers, and Lew Watson.

BIG BEAR BRINGS BUSY BUSINESS

Big Frank, a bear with a long repertory of astonishing tricks, was again the sensation at Austin & Stone's yesterday. Bonnette, the gymnast; the Robertos in a knife-throwing act, Annie Howard, tattooed queen; Professor Riley, veteran fiddler; the Down South Band, were among other features. There was a score of applause winning features in the theatre shows. In ... were numbers by Arberg and Wagner, the clever dancing duo; Winnie Clark, who sang "pictured songs"; the Martinez, in a musical surprise; the Sisters Tuscano, and new motion pictures.

GOOD CHORUS WORK IN DAINTY PAREE

The Dainty Paree company opened a week's engagement at the Lyceum Theatre yesterday. The chorus is very good. Most of the songs are good and the comedians, Tim Cronin and Jack Marshall, are funny. Cunningham and Fowley, dancers and singers, give an amusing act. Moran and Wiser with hats and clubs, Professor Howard and his pictures, Ranzetta and Lyman, comedy acrobats; McLain sisters, dancers, and Belle Travers, the star of the performance, make a fine olio. The burlesque is called "The Day After."

'TWO SAILOR BOYS' IS MAGNETIC

"Two Little Sailor Boys" proved a magnetic attraction at the Bowdoin Square Theatre yesterday. It is one of the best plays the company has in its repertoire. There was enough of the spectacular to suit the lover of the picturesque. The story is fascinating. The scenery was striking.

NIGHTINGALES MAKE MERRY AT COLUMBIA

Campbell's Nightingales are giving a clever show at the Columbia Theatre this week. They have two funny burlettas entitled "Hello" and "College Life." Both are chock full of tinkling music and funny sayings. The olio is unusually good and contains Yorke Comedy Four, Miss Bertha Sherwood in illustrated songs, Mo... in sensational dancing, Bill Barlow and Belle Darling in a merry conceit.

ORPHEUM HAS GREAT BILL

Will the Orpheum draw houses this week? It certainly will if Boston people want to see a well-balanced vaudeville bill. A sketch that is funny is Fred Ray's company in a Roman travesty, with himself as the witty Roman Senator. Harrigan, tramp juggler, is the kind of a drawing card that would pull the most nonappreciative audience into a commotion. Two Boston boys are Armstrong and Clarke, in one act of absurdity.

Winsome Eva Taylor is also here with her one-act sketch, "The Circus Rider." While she is good, her act centres on the excellent dialogue of Lawrence Grattan. Edmund Elton is Lord Weldon. W. E. Whittle, a ventriloquist, has as pretty a setting and a line of "con" as has ever been seen on the Orpheum stage. His impersonation of "Colonel" Roosevelt is good. Therese Renz is an equestrienne sensation, and Mlle. Nadje is a wonder in the equipoise line. Fortune and Davis have a pretty dancing and singing sketch, and the Four Londons are here with their ever-thrilling mid-air acrobatic feats.

"COMING THRO' RYE" HAS NEW FEATURE

"Coming Thro' the Rye" has entered upon the last fortnight of its engagement at the Boston Theatre.

An agreeable and unlooked for feature last night was the appearance of Miss Nena Blake in her original character of Bossie Claude, "the girl with the white horse."

FISKE O'HARA GETS ENCORES

Smiles and encores greeted Mr. Blarney from Ireland" on his return last evening to the Globe Theatre. Fiske O'Hara, the famous tenor singing comedian, as "Mr. Blarney," made a great hit by his portrayal of the lad from Dublin, who comes to this country to manage the real estate business of his father's close friend, Mr. Murphy, has trouble with his rivals and makes love to Kate Murphy. His singing was very pleasing, and he introduces some favorite Irish ballads.

"GOOD HOPE" IS GRUESOME TALE OF CRIME

Ellen Terry began her second and final week at the Hollis with the first presentation in Boston of as gruesome and tragically harrowing a play of the sea as ever tore the heart-strings of amusement seekers. Through four acts "The Good Hope" leads on and on through crime, grief and disaster to the harrowing sorrow of its close, with never a ray of hope, save in the name of the drama, and never a delight, save its masterful presentation by a powerful company.

"The Good Hope" is the story of the miseries of a Dutch fishing village, the sorrows of the sturdy men who go down to the sea in ships, the griefs of the widowed and fatherless, the fearful human price paid for the herring that mean a bare subsistence. And over all is the bane of the soulless smack owner who sends strong men to their death in rotten hulks that he may gain through insurance on his useless vessels.

The play is not a tragedy. Rather it is a series of heart-rending pictures in which the wretchedness of the present—as though not enough—is enhanced by the terrors of past disasters, rehearsed to the accompaniment of Winter's wildest storm. Miss Terry as Kniertje, who has already sacrificed a husband and two sons to the altar of the fisheries, and who sees two more sons sent from her side to their deaths, gives a charming portrayal of the Dutch housewife.

In the charming little comedy, "Nance Oldfield," given as a curtain-raiser, Miss Terry brought her audience to her feet.

RUNAWAY GIRLS MAKE 'EM HUSTLE

It is "hustle and catch 'em" this week at the Palace, for Clark's Runaway Girls are there and the Palace Vaudeville Company. The burlesque, "The Sultan's Dilemma," is more pretentious than most offerings of its kind. The olio presents Clara Burg, in a dainty dancing act; the Bowery Boys' quartette; Bert Wiggin, cartoonist and juggler, and the four Livingstons, European acrobats. The Palace company includes Clark and Hanson, musical artists; William Hilton, comedy juggler; Tennis Trio, the Burtinos, equilibrists;

CARLE PICKED A LEMON, BUT NOT IN THE "CHICKEN"

Richard Carle may have picked a lemon in the garden of love, but he gathered no citrous fruit in "The Spring Chicken." Neither did the audience which attended the opening last night at the Colonial Theatre.

But, prithee Sweet One, as Carle might so suavely express it, did Carle pick a lemon in the garden of love, and how about it? Yes, he did, so he says in his best song hit of the piece, whose chorus goes:

"Will someone kindly tell me;
Will someone tell me why,
To me it is a riddle,
And it will be till I die.
A million peaches 'round me,
Yet, I would like to know
Why I picked a lemon in the garden of love
Where they say only peaches grow."

That song was played to chase out the house and to-day is being whistled about town.

"The Spring Chicken" is a mighty satisfying show. There is no perceptibly jarring note in it. The chorus is characteristically a Carle one, well costumed, averaging up pretty good looking and rather young than anything else.

Carle is funny, cleanly so. As usual, he works all the time and keeps the stage "business" going fast. He comes on early in the first act and sticks. He dances with his accustomed daddy longlegs abandon and has a song or two in every act. His "All the Girls Love Me" in the first act, with a succession of girls in different nationality parts coming in through a revolving door, caught the house at the start.

In his serio-comic manner he delivers himself of various amusing lines in this play which he "Americanized" himself. Samples of these lines are:

His definition of the icthyosaurus is a pathetic thing, about as pathetically absurd as the curtain speech which Carle perpetrated after the second act.

The plot? Well, Carle took some medicine that made him want to gambol in the Spring like a lamb, or like a Spring chicken. So he gambolled. It was in Paris, which helped the gambolling. The supporting company is entirely adequate. For its songs, music, lines and its all-pervading star, "The Spring Chicken" deserves praise, and promises to wear like a new Spring suit.

MUCH ADO ABOUT HOWELL HANSEL

"Much Ado About Nothing" is the name of the play, but the interest of every spectator at the Castle Square Theatre yesterday seemed to be centred more in Howell Hansel, who plays his farewell week here in the character of young Benedick. Both performances to-day are testimonials to him, and souvenir photos will be given. The ten scenes were never better staged.

BROWN OF HARVARD ON FINAL WEEK

At the Majestic Theatre last night Henry Woodruff entered upon the third and last week of his engagement in the spirited college play, "Brown of Harvard." Crowded houses have been the rule ever since this popular comedy began its engagement in Boston.

'LANKY BOB' AGAIN FIGHTS

Bob Fitzsimmons in a "Fight for Love" is this week's attraction at the Grand Opera House, and judging from the way the crowds packed the house yesterday "Lanky Bob" has lost none of his popularity. He gave a fine exhibition of bag punching and his three-round bout was thrilling. He is assisted by Julia May Gifford, who is Mrs. Robert Fitzsimmons in private life. She makes an excellent heroine, being gifted with beauty and a fine voice. "Bob," after the third act, was compelled to make a speech. Frank Holland, as the villain, did capital work. The company is well balanced.

Those Giants may get away with a clean sweep, but it's a safe bet that it won't be without a struggle, as the Doves are a pretty sore bunch at losing three straight to McGraw's men, and as Foxy John has used up his best material in the box he will have to take a chance this afternoon with some of his youngsters.

It will be Vive Lindaman's fling at the Giants, and the big fellow will break his arm if necessary to make the final game at the South End Grounds a successful journey all the way. Ferguson is McGraw's choice.

Tenney's men will take a look along the Eastern end of the circuit after to-day's game, and the trip will include three games at Brooklyn, one at Philadelphia, then three with the Giants in Gotham, and back to the hearthstone on May 3.

But what the fans want to know is the method of procedure which the Tenneyites are going to use in this last meeting on the home grounds with the high-flying Giants. It's a tough proposition at all angles and it's very evident that McGraw is trying to get a jump away start in this season's race and putting the lid on every contest that is in sight.

Pat Flaherty, the ex-Pirate, nearly upset McGraw's calculations yesterday when he made his debut before a Hub audience, and gave an exhibition which called for applause every time the home crowd came to the bench to take their innings.

The little southpaw must have been aware that the local observers of his masterly twirling were with him and realized that he was up against one of the greatest stars on the firing line in Christy Mathewson, but he did some greater deeds than the mighty Matty, and it was only at the last minute, when the curtain was about to be rung down for the regulation full game, that the Giants pulled over a tally which sealed matters.

Considering that the Giants had such a narrow escape they will need all their confidence to lead the way in their final appearance.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Flaherty left a fine impression.

* * *

The game would have gone extra innings but Pat was a little out of focus in the last round.

* * *

By passing Bresnahan in the ninth and Dahlen landing on one cinched matters for the Giants.

* * *

Flaherty is like a cat in the box. Woe to the batsman who attempts to turn around and dispute a strike with the umpire. The ball is over the base before he can swing his bat.

* * *

Roger Bresnahan will delay the game strapping on his shin pads. But, then, Roger's sensitive shanks must be protected.

* * *

"Lots of room," yelled Christy as Roger was turning inside out trying to take a foul pop. And Roger dropped it.

* * *

Christy was there with his old-time speed. The ball looked pretty small when it reached the plate.

* * *

That was pretty sharp work on the part of Bresnahan to catch both Howard and Bridwell off the first bag. Not much excuse for the victims.

* * *

Bill Dahlen kept fouling off till one of the new white boys was tossed out on the field. Flaherty did his best to obscure it with dirt, but Dahlen slammed it for two bases.

Johnny Bates got the full force of the sun in his eyes and dropped Corcoran's high fly, allowing Tommy to reach second.

* * *

Then Flaherty worked a neat trick on Mathewson. He caught him off his balance on a quick return and Matty popped a soft one to the pitcher, making it easy to double Dahlen who was yards off the third sack.

* * *

It was Flaherty's ability to get out of tight places which made him solid. Twice with only one down and a Giant hanging on to the third corner, Pat pulled the team out of a hole.

* * *

There was a fine chance to score in the sixth. Bates hit a ball that was over his head for a single. Matty let Tenney's bunt go through his legs. Beaumont laid down a nice sacrifice bunt.

* * *

Claude Ritchey got the worst of strike decisions, but the ex-Pittsburger takes his medicine gamely and refuses to get tangled up with the umpire.

* * *

Bob Emslie did not think Tenney's offence on Saturday necessary to keep him out of the game, and he was allowed to get into the game on a promise of good behavior.

* * *

Some of the pikers were pretty sore on Emslie for not giving the game to the home team, and hurled some hard language at his back as he walked to his dressing room.

NOTES OF THE BOXERS.

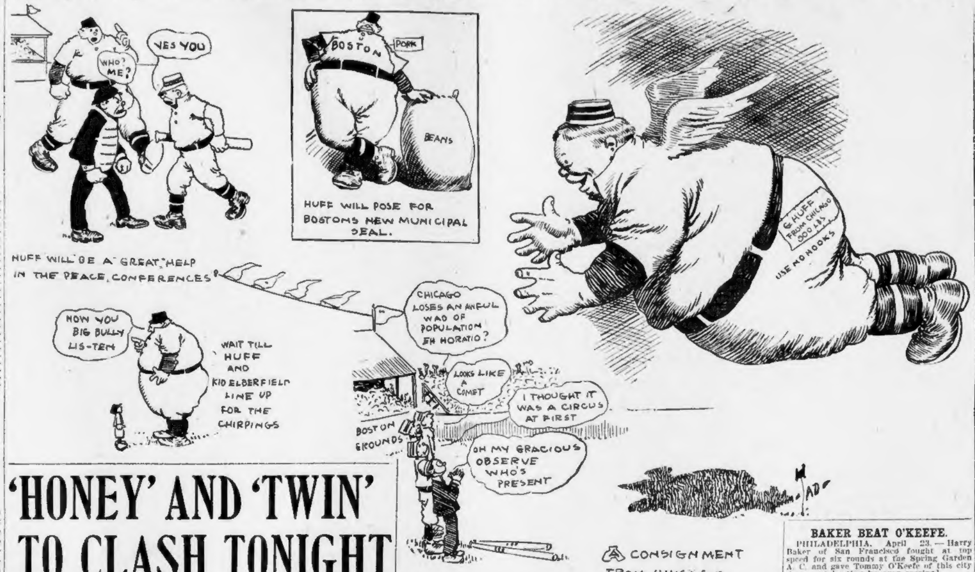

Hugh Glancy, the clever and popular Pawtucket boxer, has opened a school of physical culture in Pawtucket, his home town, and has a big following.

Johnny Lynch will meet any boy at 110 pounds. He will fight Monks the Newsboy of Providence at weight.

Kid Donohue of Roxbury has come East and will stay in Chicago for awhile while the game flourishes there.

Billy Papke, the Spring Valley slugger, is matched to fight Tony Caponi, the husky Italian fighter, before the club offering the largest purse. The managers of the men, T. E. Jones for Papke and Teddy Murphy for Caponi, met and quickly agreed on terms and signed articles. The men will weigh in at 132 pounds at 3 o'clock.

Special to the Boston American.

LOS ANGELES, April 23.—"Honey" Mellody and Mike (Twin) Sullivan, who are scheduled for a twenty-round bout at 145 pounds to-night before the Pacific Athletic Club, have drawn the biggest advance sale of tickets in many months, and as both men profess to be in the pink of condition, a good fight is expected.

Mellody has been training at the East Side Athletic Club, under the watchful eyes of Johnny Mooney, his manager, and "Molly" McDonald, while Sullivan has done his work at Arcadia, being assisted and advised by his brother Jack.

Both training quarters have been watched by those who make training quarters a specialty, and on this Mellody has been installed a hot 10 to 8 favorite. More money is being bet on the fight than on anything since the Burns-O'Brien fight, and the short-enders are eating up the Mellody end.

Mellody is six years younger than Mike, but both men began fighting in 1901, so there is little advantage in experience. If anything, the experience lies with Mellody, as he has fought oftener than "Twin." Mike has an overhand lead which is a mean one to counter, and Mellody will have his work cut out for him if he expects to beat down Sullivan's guard and get to his lean body. Sullivan is not noted for his great punch, although he is a punishing, damaging fighter at all stages and has a trick of ripping his man to ribbons at an exchange of blows.

It promises to be a fast fight, and most of the fans pick Mellody to win, probably because he holds the welterweight title.

To-night's fight does not involve the welterweight championship, but the winner will be recognized as the champion.

Manager McCarey expects to match the winner with Joe Thomas for a June date for the welterweight championship.

Charley Eyton will referee the bout. The main event will be preceded by two good preliminaries.

GANS GIVES IN ON WEIGHT TO NELSON

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, April 23.—Joe Gans is about to give in to the demands of "Battling" Nelson and meet him at 133 pounds ringside weight, fighting togs on. Tex Rickard telegraphed this morning to the Sporting Editor of the Chicago American, saying that he has offered a $40,000 purse for a battle between Gans and Nelson, in Ely, Nev., July 4 or Sept. 3, and that he has posted $20,000 with the First National Bank of Ely.

A telegram sent by Gans in reply to Rickard's proposal states that he is willing to give in to Nelson on the weight question, but that the purse must be split 75 per cent. to the winner and 25 per cent. to the loser, but before he decides definitely he would like to hear what the public opinion on the matter is.

Nelson, who is at his home in Hegewisch, to-day stated that should Gans decide that he will sign at 133 pounds ringside with fighting togs he will sign, too. Unless public sentiment turns Gans from his present intentions, it is certain he will sign before May 1.

LANGFORD WINS BY A KNOCKOUT; DELMONT LOSES

Special Cable to Hearst News Service.

LONDON, April 23.—Sam Langford of Boston knocked out "Tiger" Smith in four rounds, and Al Delmont of Medford, Mass., lost the decision on points in a twenty-round battle to Owen Moran, in the two big international bouts before the National Sporting Club.

The Delmont-Moran bout was a hummer from the word go, and, as was expected, Delmont lost the award. However, the American did not appear quite as clever as the native, who is a great favorite with the members of the club under whose auspices they fought.

Smith was the biggest kind of a mark for the colored boxer from the Hub. Langford had his opponent beaten at every stage of the contest, and it was surprising that he did not score a knockout a round or two earlier.

Moran and Delmont fought for a purse of $2,000, and Langford and Smith for a purse of $1,400.

The work of Langford met with the greatest approbation on all sides, and the president of the club shook hands with him and heartily congratulated him on his good showing, after the mill. Langford will now be matched with Gunner Moir, the English champion.

Notes of the Harness Horses

Members of the Dorchester Driving Club were very anxious to see Dr. A. H. Fitch's recent purchase, Peruvian, by Matterhorn, 2:16¼, dam by Autograph, 2:16½, perform in the Speedway matinees. He is said to be hot stuff, and will be raced professionally later in the season in the slow trotting classes.

All of Lon McDonald's horses are in the pink of condition at Selma, Ala. The fastest mile to date is 2:24¼, so it is said, by any of the string. This is much more encouraging for the Boston stable than was the case when at Readville a year ago.

A couple of the best two-year-olds at the Johnson farm, Ponkapoag, have changed ownership. Jimmy Timothy, acting for a patron, bought the trotting filly by Bingen, 2:06¼, out of Ethelyn, 2:24¼, and the pacing colt by Direct Hal, 2:04¼, dam by Prince Regent, 2:16½. The filly is well engaged in the futurities, and will be handled by Timothy at his Lexington, Mass., track for the events.

Harry D. Nay, who has recently accepted the position of assistant trainer for Henry Titer, is prominent with the local horsemen. Long before Readville was a mile track his father, "Farmer" Nay, had a string of horses at the half-mile ring; in fact, Harry D. was born in the house then standing inside the enclosed grounds. It will be seen that he was fairly brought up in a training and racing stable.

If Bill Squires Wins Heavyweight Title

BIG JEFF WILL FIGHT

By Boston American Leased Wire.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 23.—James J. Jeffries says he will return to the ring if the title of heavyweight champion becomes the property of a foreigner. If it remains in American hands he will not leave his retirement. Here is his own statement:

BY JAMES J. JEFFRIES.

Will I fight Bill Squires, the Australian championship pugilist? Yes, if he wins the American championship from an American. I have retired, and do not wish to go back in the ring.

I have no love for the glove battles, but I saw a chance to win a competency in a few short years and I took it. I have this now. It is safely invested where I cannot lose it, and where it will bring me a comfortable income for the rest of my life, so I don't need to fight again.

My wife wants to see the historic places of Europe, and I, too, have a desire to see places I have heard and read about. I shall sail for Europe as scheduled, and meanwhile Mr. Squires will thrash out the situation with the ambitious young fighters of to-day. They are a fair lot, and will keep this fellow busy unless I am much mistaken.

Squires Must Win Title.

Should he whip the best American fighters and win from them the championship I'll cut short my travels and come back to take a whirl at the old game.

I don't wave the star spangled banner every time I get a chance to get a gallery yell, but I am a good American for all that, and I don't want to see the championship held by a foreigner if I can help it.

I have read Squires's statement. It is a nice, straightforward, manly appeal. It impresses me favorably.

I had a letter from Billy Delaney to-day. Billy was present when Squires gave an exhibition before a number of newspaper men, photographers and fight experts last week. Billy says Squires is a likely looking fellow, very strong, hardy, with plenty of punishing power, a good strong fighting face, not very big measurements, but what we call a big little man—that is, every ounce of him is fighting weight.

Billy does not say so, but he seems to think that Jack O'Brien may outpoint him, and that he would whip Tommy Burns. Anyway, Billy thinks he is a good one.

If Squires whips Burns, O'Brien, Schreck, Kaufman and the best crop of heavyweights, he will have to fight me before he goes back to Australia.

This I promise the American public, and shall keep my promise.

SUGGESTS AUTO DEALERS HOLD OPENING ON MAY 1

By J. C. KERRISON.

It has been suggested by Manager W. S. Daniels of the local office of the Dragon that the Boston automobile dealers unite in the holding of a May opening, the same to be inaugurated May 1 and continue throughout that week. In speaking of the matter yesterday Mr. Daniels said this scheme has been successfully tried by the dealers of Philadelphia, Chicago and Denver, and found to be of value to the industry.

The interest in motoring would be materially increased, as the first of May is virtually at the season of the year when motoring should be about to start in with a full flourish of trumpets and pleasure. It would be a grand idea to hold such a festival. The dealers might well set forth some additional incentive to increase the interest. A parade could be held one afternoon, a hill-climbing contest would be possible the next, and some one feature made for each of the four days comprising the festival.

It is possible that the Boston Automobile Dealers' Association may take some official recognition of the scheme. Many of the dealers would join hands in making the festival a grand success.

The City Council of Victoria, Texas, has passed a motor ordinance through its first reading, limiting the speed of motor cars in and through the city at a maximum rate of six miles an hour, and when turning corners at a speed of three miles per hour, the proper signal to be given before turning corners.

There are six cars in Victoria now, and a number of complaints have been registered against the high and dangerous speed at which they are being propelled in the city. Victoria is only one of the cities in the Lone Star State to take up the motor question. Several others are discussing the adoption of ordinances.

A number of distinguished foreign delegates to the recent Peace Conference in New York were given a splendid opportunity to see the city and its environs through the courtesy of Carl H. Page, who put two of the new White steamers at their disposal.

Among those to enjoy a long ride about the city were Sir Robert Ball, Baron d'Estournelles de Constant, Maarten Maartens, Sir Robert Cranston, Lord Provost of Edinburgh, Chancellor Roberts of the University of Cambridge and W. T. Stead. Lord Cranston wittily summarized the satisfaction of the party when he said: "Riding in those steamers we enjoyed greater peace and quiet than we did at the sessions of the Congress."

War to the knife and the knife to the hilt has been declared upon track racing by President W. H. Hotchkiss, of the American Automobile Association, but C. E. Gregory, chairman of the racing committee of the Chicago Automobile Club is congratulating himself that the club plans for a track race will not incur the wrath of the A. A. A. head. The opposition of President Hotchkiss to the speed events is based on the danger [illegible]ved at excessive speeds, either when such speed demons as Oldfield and his compeers are driving at their maddest pace, or when the track is crowded with machines. Chairman Gregory's plan from the first has been to run the race in heats, with only two drivers on the track at a time. Autoists with a fondness for a dash over the oval are wondering how soon President Hotchkiss will begin to shut down on the track events. The A. A. A. at present holds the supreme power of sanctioning such races.—Chicago Auto Club Journal.

While the use of vanadium as an alloy for steel is but just arousing interest in this country, it is by no means new to the metal workers of Europe. The Vickers-Maxim guns, used by the Japanese in the war with Russia, were made with an alloy of vanadium, and did not suffer from erosion, while the guns they captured from the Russians were largely incapacitated by this form of deterioration.

In the automobile field, Berliet of France has for several years been using a vanadium alloy for various parts, including the cylinder castings of the engine. These same castings are imported by the American Locomotive Automobile Company, with the other metal parts, for the construction of the Berliet car in its Providence factory. Vanadium adds greatly to the elasticity and ductile strength of steel, and to the longevity of it. One per cent. of vanadium is said to add as much tensile strength to steel as 10 per cent. of nickel. Certain iron mines of Sweden, the output of which is monopolized in Europe, have long yielded an ore containing vanadium.

The race committee of the Bay State Automobile Association has added a fifty-mile event for runabouts to its programme of races for Memorial Day. Three prizes will be offered in this event, which it is believed will bring together the runabouts which are claimed to be the best of the year. The entrance fee for the touring car and runabout class has been placed at $50 per car. No restrictions as to price or horse power of car have been determined upon, and, as it now stands, a ten horse power stock touring car can make entry and compete against cars of 45 or more horse power if owners so desire.

HUB NATIONALS SECURE BURKE

Having a good deal of spare material on hand, the New York Giants have agreed to let the Bostons have Outfielder Frank Burke, who played last season with the New Haven club, of the Connecticut League. Burke batted for .349 last season, and was considered the sensation of his organization. Many clubs had wires out for him, but the Giants offered the most money for him, and procured him.

FARLEY DISPLACES MORGAN AT STROKE

Coach Wray of the Harvard crew made up his mind yesterday that Morgan, who has stroked the crew all this Spring, was not the best man for the position, so he was sent to No. 4 on the second crew, and Farley put in at stroke. Burchard was put in the bow and Tappan was sent to the second stroke to get some practice at stroke with the hopes that he will develop into a varsity stroke.

NEW YORK, April 23.—It was unfavorable baseball weather again this morning, and it was doubtful if the Boston and New York teams would meet in the final clash at American League Park this afternoon. If the rain stops, however, every effort will be made to play the game.

Cy Young, who is the most successful pitcher on the Pilgrims' staff to date, will have to come to the rescue this afternoon, according to present plans. Young is in grand form, and as he is one of the best "cool weather" twirlers in the business, the locals will do well if they are able to cop the big honors.

Walter Clarkson, the former Harvard captain and big favorite in the Hub, will probably be sent to face the Boston aggregation. Clarkson is in the best form of his career this season, and he is very anxious to beat the boys from Boston.

There was all kinds of baseball at American League Park yesterday. The pitchers were hammered all over the lot, and there was so much batting that the old-time fans sat with wide-open eyes, fully appreciating the swatfest.

Willie Keeler and Unglaub were the stars of the occasion, and they smashed the horsehide with unusual vehemence.

Hughes pitched five innings for the locals, and he was batted so hard that Keefe was sent in. The Bostons got after the latter, too, but he had luck with him, and the Bostons did not score as often off him as they did off his predecessor.

Winter started to pitch for the Beaneaters, but the Highlanders got next to his curves about the same time the visitors got wise to Hughes, and Winter retired in favor of Harris.

CHANCE FOR MAT ARTISTS

Al Christensen, the wrestler, is in town, and ready to make a match with some of the big mat artists in New England. He is after Lundin, Prokos or Perelli for a finish bout and will post a $250 forfeit.

Christensen will wrestle Barnes at Springfield to-morrow night. He may be addressed care of O. A. Ellis, No. 54 Grove street, Chelsea.

LONGEST BLOCK SIGNAL SYSTEM

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 23.—E. H. Harriman and his assistants have decided upon block signal improvements which will give the Harriman system the longest continuous stretch of track protected in this way of any railroad in the world. The line from Omaha, by way of San Francisco to Los Angeles and Banning will be safeguarded with automatic signals, a distance of 2,345 miles.

HORSES, CARRIAGES, ETC.

Commission Stables

120 Dover St., rear 1130 Washington St.

LUMBER CAMP HORSES

REMEMBER, WE HAVE NO CONNECTION WITH ANY OTHER STABLE. Leave either elevated or surface cars at Dover st. and you are right at our door. There are other sales stables in Boston, but we are the only one that has a supply from which any one can select and be satisfied in every particular. We sell a hundred head while others are selling a pair. Take a look in and see the 200 or more horses that we offer at rock-bottom prices. We handle all the business for truckmen and lumber camp contractors; in fact, all who wish to turn their horseflesh into dollars quick, we sell them on commission. Your offer will be accepted if it is a reasonable one.

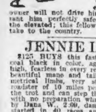

We Offer Some Sensational Bargains

THE coming week, having received on April 20 100 head from the largest lumber camp contractor in New England, who tells us to get him money quick, and we are going to do it this week. These horses range in weight from 1,150 lbs. up to 1,600 lbs single and from 2,300 up to 3,500 lbs. pair, all ages. Prices from $25 upward. All broken and acclimated. Here is the chance of a lifetime. Don't miss it. 120 Dover st.; GEO. OLSEN, phone 21035 Tremont.

DRIVING HORSES.

WE HAVE a consignment of 16 horses from the well-known trainer, Frank Russell of Brighton Beach, who is unable to train this season because of ill health, and these horses must be disposed of at once, no reasonable offer refused; this is a rare lot to choose from, consisting of some well-matched pairs, stylish cobs, and several that can step very fast; any gentleman or lady looking for a high-class horse at a low price will do well to call and examine this lot; please ask to be shown Mr. Russell's horses, prospective buyers will receive courteous treatment; these horses are sold under a full guarantee and 30 days' trial allowed; remember, the price of these horses is less than broken-down old nags you might buy at auction. 120 Dover st.

SADDLE HORSE—$135.

BIG BARGAINS THIS WEEK

The Best Pianos New and Second Hand

Don't get the impression that only second-hand pianos can be had at these sales. As a matter of fact, we sometimes sell the entire stock of new Pianos of some small Piano Trust Dealer, who through force of circumstances was obliged to "shut up shop," store his stock and finally let it go. We have in the course of a year hundreds of new Trust Pianos that in the "course of events" come up in the salesrooms to be sold and always at a sacrifice.

We would advise you to make up your mind to buy your Piano as soon as circumstances will allow you. Some weeks there are not enough Pianos in the lot to last through Saturday, and we do not take any from the accounts for sale until Mondays—People who get in and buy Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays get tremendous bargains—Every Piano is tuned by our expert and is at concert pitch before coming into our salesroom—We let no Piano go out before being assured of its excellent condition.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, APRIL 23, 1907

An Interesting Question for the American People

Do THEY Choose the President, or Is That Mr. Roosevelt's Job?

Mr. Roosevelt has said formally and apparently with deep conviction that HE PROPOSES TO NAME THE NEXT PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

It is true that the United States Constitution provides other arrangements. The Constitution of the United States arranges for the people of the United States to select and elect their own President. First, they choose certain electors, and then those electors, OBEYING THE ORDERS OF THE VOTERS, elect the President.

In a way, the original constitutional plan has gradually changed. The idea of those who wrote the Constitution was that the ordinary people would elect some high-class men as electors in each State, and that these wise and reliable men would choose the best man for President.

As it is now, the people themselves choose their candidate, and the electing of the electors is a mere formality. These electors simply vote for the person whom the people have chosen, and many voters don't even know that any electors exist.

Possibly this little change in the Constitution has encouraged Mr. Roosevelt to think that the people would approve of even more radical changes. But we don't think they would approve just yet a change quite as radical as that which Mr. Roosevelt has in mind.

Mr. Roosevelt has many ardent admirers, and he has a profound belief in his own exclusive ability to manage and govern the United States.

He has frankly said that he considers the country lost unless he shall succeed in compelling the election to the presidency of a man LIKE HIMSELF.

Therefore, he proposes to save the people the trouble of choosing a President. HE WILL CHOOSE ONE.

He is kind in one respect—he does not leave the people in suspense. He has already named and chosen the next President, and his name is Taft. (Of course, there is a little mental third term reservation which might leave poor Mr. Taft "waiting at the church.")

Mr. Taft, whom Mr. Roosevelt has selected to be the President of the United States, with or without the consent of the eighty millions of unimportant people, is a very fat gentleman, with a very bad labor record among other things. It is true that he has a good CORPORATION record—good from the point of view of the corporations—and that will make up for his bad labor record in certain quarters.

Supposing that he can't get a third term for himself, Mr. Roosevelt proposes to have his man Taft put in the White House.

The development of this republic of ours is still in its infancy. Anything may happen in a country where a few simple-minded Puritans and old-fashioned Americans, without knowing it, ESTABLISHED THE GREATEST NATION OF PLUTOCRATS THE WORLD HAS EVER SEEN.

Perhaps it wouldn't be so very surprising to see in a hundred years the will of the people replaced by the will of one man in office. We doubt, however, whether the time has come for that YET.

We are inclined to think that in 1908 or a little sooner the people of the United States will make Mr. Roosevelt understand that WITH HIS KIND PERMISSION they propose to go on selecting their own Presidents.

They seem to have done pretty well for the last hundred years or so, and they believe that they can continue to struggle along without the obliging dictatorship of Mr. Roosevelt.

That is our opinion. We may be wrong, Mr. Roosevelt may be right, AND THE PEOPLE MAY DECIDE TO HAVE HIM TAKE THE PLACE OF THE WHOLE LOT OF THEM AND SAVE THEM THE TROUBLE OF NAMING A MAN FOR THEIR HIGHEST OFFICE.

If it should turn out that way, it would be one interesting step in our national development.

The Peace Congress

By Rev. Charles A. Crane

(PASTOR PEOPLE'S TEMPLE)

SPAIN is a fine sample of the have been held up and skinned can cob left after military pre- easily see the beauties of a reign of paredness has eaten the corn. peace, where the normal weapons of Once she swept the seas and powder and lead are counted out. the world uncovered its head when she spoke. Now she is hardly a nightmare.

With General Rockefeller and General Carnegie leading this host, which is seeking to displace force of arms with any other power, the show looks laughable and reminds us of the man who was challenged to fight a duel, and as he had the right to select the weapons, at once chose snowballs.

So also with England. She might have been far greater had it not been for her soldiers. Through her army she lost the United States. Canada is here, not because of her soldiers, but because the people believe in and love self-government. Australia was conquered by the missionaries and merchants of England.

Assuredly, let us have peace, and let the military retire, except for police purposes. But while we are whipping ourselves up into this revival state of public virtue, why should we not lift our voices against the wicked warfare now going on in things economic?

The fundamental fallacy obtaining among the international pugilists and the blustering braggarts who go about with a chip on their shoulders is that war is a necessity, whereas it is a crime.

We pay our unwilling tribute to oil, and steel, and sugar, and railroads, and other armies which levy upon us in peace.

It is an economic monstrosity—a reversal of the processes of social evolution. It is the duty of the nation to prepare for defense. Any other idea of military preparedness is absurd to the last degree.

We are plundered by unjust laws, and then some saints marvel that the spirit of war is so rampant and some philosophers wonder that the people are not more tractable.

Who can ever imagine that any nation can realize the dream of the great Napoleon and see universal empire in the hands of one country?

In these pipping times of peace let us proclaim a war against those devilish laws which make a few milk-fed, overrich monopolists, who scatter their ill-gotten gains with all the modesty of an undressed ape.

We may well glory in our army and navy as the defenders of our homes, but that glory deserts them and us when we go forth to shoot our notions of liberty into those who refuse to yield to our dominion. The voice of Christ, of statecraft and of political economy alike are all against war.

A war on the present unjust and wicked economic system is the real war we shall be happy to see eventuate in peace, when the laborer is no longer pesled of all but a bare living and when an ostentatious gift to a library to be used as a monument may not offset years of plundering of the people under the protection of laws made by a party all too long in power.

The present agitation against war by some of the most successful generals in the modernized system of warfare hath its path,s and its humor.

These extremes of wealth, which are breeding anarchy far faster than the rich will believe, are almost altogether the result of national laws kept in operation by the same powers which contribute to the elections of our chief executives.

Here we find one of the most illustrious conquerors, who has carried off safely plunder more than enough for a kings' ransom.

These generals in the present economic warfare, wherein the people

ONE CAUSE OF BAD ROADS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I see the automobilists are agitating the question of good roads while the State is getting excited about the cost of maintenance. I don't know how it is out of the city, but I think most observers will agree with me that the gas and water and electric light people are responsible for most of the bad places in Boston proper streets.

The street is dug up in the Winter or Fall or Spring and when the job is finished no effort is made to restore the street to its original condition. The result is a hole against which drivers and autoists rightly protest.

Why not force the corporations to restore the streets to decent condition when they dig them up.

"E. Z." GETS A SEASON PASS

1.—STRANGER—Mr. Mark, the management of the local baseball team, knowing you to be a public-spirited citizen who takes a live interest in outdoor sports, takes pleasure in presenting you with a season pass for yourself and family.

E. Z. MARK—Thank you, sir. I appreciate the compliment very highly.

2.—STRANGER—By the way, Mr. Mark, we are soliciting voluntary contributions for a Pension Fund for Superannuated Baseball Players. Your neighbor, Mr. Subbubs, is down for one hundred dollars. Do you care to contribute?

E. Z. MARK—Put me down for two hundred. Here's the money.

3.—E. Z. MARK—Get your things on, Mary, and we'll go to the baseball game. I've got a season pass, sent me by the management. No, it didn't cost me a cent. To be sure, I gave a little something to the Pension Fund for Superannuated Baseball Players, but that was a voluntary contribution.

4.—GATE-KEEPER—You can't get in on that pass, Mister. It's for 1908. And you can't buy a ticket now; they're all sold.

MRS. MARK—E. Z., are you quite sure that money you contributed didn't go to the Pension Fund for Superannuated Bunco Sleepers?

The Time Is Surely Coming When the Billions Now Spent for Armament Will Be Properly Used

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

The following lines are from a poem entitled "The Edict of the Sea," by Ella Wheeler Wilcox. The entire poem is printed in this month's Cosmopolitan Magazine, and these extracts are reprinted by permission.

RATHER than breed strong sons, at war's behest,
Or bring fair daughters into life, to bear
The pains of travail, for no end but war—
Aye! let the race die out for lack of babes;
Better race suicide than endless wars!
Better a silent world than noise of guns
And clash of armies.

GIVE us, O men, your word that war shall end;
Disarm the world, and we will give you sons—
Sons to construct, and daughters to adorn
A beautiful new earth, where there shall be
Fewer and finer people, opulence
And opportunity and peace for all.
Until you promise peace no shrill birth-cry
Shall sound again upon the aging earth.
We wait your answer.

IN one week's travel on the Mediterranean Sea I saw warships that had cost over one hundred millions of dollars, manned by carefully selected able-bodied men, whose only occupation was preparation for war, whose only thoughts were for destruction of life and property.

These men cost the world hundreds of thousands of dollars, yet they contributed nothing in its advancement. They are creating and producing nothing which benefits humanity.

Meanwhile, wherever I went on the shores bordering this sea, I saw poverty and the filth resulting from poverty; sickness, resulting from both poverty and uncleanliness, and misery inexpressible.

I saw hundreds of men and women so ignorant that they were obliged to employ the services of the professional letter writer to compose a love epistle to friends. Everywhere in those Southern countries letter writers find continual occupation.

Too Heavy Taxes

THEY sit out on the pavements, at little tables and receive dictation from the poor men and women, many of them gray and old, others in life's prime, who have been denied the advantages of ordinary education, because of grinding poverty.

Yet the countries to which they belong are taxed heavily to maintain warships and armies on land and sea.

The young men of Italy are full of ambition, and eager to make their way in the world.

But they are handicapped by this awful law of the land, which compels them to give three of the best years of their life to service in the army without remuneration. The payment they receive for service is barely enough to give them the necessities of life, and they return to their homes penniless or in debt at the expiration of their term.

A young Italian, the oldest of eight children, told me a touching incident of his family. His brother, by some slight defect in measurements, was excused from service at the eleventh hour.

When the news was conveyed to his mother, she fainted with the sudden joy, and for a few hours her life was in danger. The family was poor, and the giving of her son's time and service to the army meant suffering and deprivation for the mother and younger children.

Signs of Progress

IN olden times, cities were built on high, inaccessible hills and surrounded by walls, to protect them from attack of enemies. War was man's only profession, and preparation for war was a necessity. Science and invention have rendered defence against invading armies almost wholly impotent.

A modern cannon and shell could destroy one of the medieval hill towns in half an hour at the distance of a mile or two. Submarine vessels and bombs can demolish warships, and the wireless telegraph can plan an attack by sea or land which will destroy a whole army in a few hours.

It is an interesting prognostication of a future era, when the intelligent minds of the world concentrate on the thought of peace and arbitration.

Some time progress will turn the billions of money now used in preparation for war to the education of the whole human race and in the establishment of the arts and industries and to the clearing up of the world.

It will do away with war, and poverty will disappear from the earth. But that time is not yet ripe. We can only prepare for it.

Trouble

By James J. Montague

WHEN I was born my lucky stars were all revolving wrong.
I'm always getting in the way when Trouble comes along.
When motor cars go whirring by, that writhing thing you see
Upon the highway in their wake is likely to be me.

O H, it's Trouble, Trouble, Trouble,
And my share is always double.
The luck I've had was always bad,
Which strikes me rather odd.
I never seem to get the pace in Life's exhilarating race.
If Trouble were a thunder storm, I'd be a lightning rod.

A LUNATIC one day walked in the house where I reside.
He had a wicked-looking box, which said "tick-tick" inside.
"I do not like your looks," I cried, "pray tell me who you are."
He said: "I am a Nihilist, and you're the Little Czar!"

YES, it's Trouble, Trouble, Trouble,
And my share is always double.
I don't know why it is, but my
Afflictions never cease.
If I should find a pocketbook, I'd be held up by some bright crook;
If Trouble were the conference, I'd be the Dove of Peace.
